Superintendent Hurt in Mill Site Accident

NEW MADRID — Lee Crisler, 52, logging superintendent at Ralph Anderson Lumber Company, received a broken collarbone, broken shoulder blade, and broken arm in an accident at 1:35 p.m. yesterday at the mill site. Crisler was operating a payloador up the side of a levee when the machine hit a hole, causing it to overturn, pinning him beneath the heavy equipment. Another payloador was used to lift the equipment to remove Crisler. He is reported in fair condition today at Missouri Delta Community hospital in Sikeston.

$1 Million Speeds Away In High Powered Auto

LONDON (AP) — Masked raiders carrying shotguns ambushed an armored money truck today and police said they escaped in a high-powered car with more than a million dollars in cash. The gangsters abandoned another $10,000 in unwieldy coins as they rushed to make their getaway. It was described as the biggest cash haul in Britain since the Great Train Robbery in 1963. Police were puzzled that there were no marks of forced entry on the yellow security truck. One report said the eight-ton truck had parked at the side of the highway in the south London suburb of Croydon while its crew "spent a penny"—a British term for going to a public lavatory. The raiders—some said, five, others six—then pounced from a large maroon-colored truck and forced its crew at gunpoint to open up. They bundled 28 green sacks of notes worth 458,240 pounds—$1,099,776—into a red Jaguar limousine and sped off—leaving their truck blocking the road. A reward of $108,000 was swiftly posted for their capture. Police said at first $1.8 million was stolen, but it was found to be less when financiers checked their books. Detectives said, however, it still could be the biggest cash haul since the $6.2 million in the Great Train Robbery.

Calley Jury in 10th Day

FT. BENNING, Ga. (AP) — Lt. William Calley's marathon My Lai murder trial jurors showed no sign that their verdict is close when they arrived today for the 10th day of deliberations. If they have reached no decision by Monday, the trial judge will ask why. The six officers on the jury indicated they are still charting the course that Calley's platoon took through the Vietnamese village on a fateful morning three years ago. There has been criticism by the defense that the jury men are winning and dining when they ought to be deliberating. It is unlikely, however, that the criticism reached the jury. Judge Reid Kennedy said Thursday he will ask a progress report if no verdict is reached after this weekend.

Peace Talk Boycott Hinted

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Department's mid-day Secretary of State William P. Rogers said today that the United States intends to continue negotiations for peace in Vietnam but held open the possibility the United States and South Vietnam might boycott the next round in Paris. The Communists postponed Thursday's scheduled meeting in protest against the latest U.S. air strikes against targets in North Vietnam. The U.S. and South Vietnam began consulting on what their counteraction would be.

"Insofar as negotiations are concerned," Rogers said in response to a news conference question, "we intend to continue negotiations. As to what will happen at the next meeting, I don't have any comment on that." The possibilities included a questioning that he thought in U.S. South Vietnam boycott of the next meeting, or the U.S. position, or a simple clarification of the U.S. position, particularly on the point of action. Conceivably they could reported pressures on Israel to ignore Thursday's withdrawal from occupied territories before a peace settlement. Rogers spoke briefly at the

Enemy Buildup Noted in DMZ

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnam rushed reinforcements to the northern front today as the allied commands reported a buildup of enemy troops and long-range artillery in the demilitarized zone dividing North and South Vietnam. The U.S. Command announced 20 American fighterbombers attacked a new North Vietnamese surface-to-air missile site Thursday in the Laotian panhandle, one mile northwest of the DMZ. —Preparation for a new South Vietnamese offensive. —Defense against North Vietnamese attacks, including one from across the DMZ. —A rest period for troops just returned from the campaign in Laos. Asked if the South Vietnamese might make a limited attack into the DMZ in an attempt to neutralize North Vietnamese forces moving in, An replied: "I cannot say. I never predict what we're doing. I don't know. Wait a few more days."

Some sources felt it would be impossible for the South Vietnamese to mount a big offensive into the DMZ or into North Vietnam after the heavy losses their forces suffered in Laos. The U.S. Command said the new SAM site was located by reconnaissance planes in the lower Laotian panhandle one mile west of the North Vietnamese border and one mile northwest of the DMZ. Artillery duels were reported across the DMZ, and U.S. military sources said the North Vietnamese had moved long-range artillery into the northern half of the six-mile-wide zone for the first time. The U.S. Command said enemy activity in the DMZ has increased 50 per cent. The Saigon government announced that several battalions of fresh troops were flown to the northern front. Lt. Col. Tran Van An, chief spokesman for South Vietnamese military headquarters, said there are now more than 20,000 Saigon troops in Quang Tri, South Vietnam's northernmost province.

Hanoi Seems Cool to Cambodian Conquest

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP)—North Vietnam, whose troops have been roaming northeast Cambodia almost at will, do not seem interested at the moment in conquering all of this war-torn country. Hanoi's defense minister, Vo Nguyen Giap, is believed holding to his longtime view of Cambodia as a supply corridor and rear base area where his men can store ammunition, build hospitals, rear headquarters and bivouacs. Available evidence indicates that Giap is mainly concerned about any threat to his lines of communication. Most of Hanoi's sanctuary areas, set up since last spring when U.S. and South Vietnamese troops blasted its bases along the Cambodian border, are in the eastern and northeastern parts of the country. Most of the 45,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong soldiers now in Cambodia are poised to parry any attempt to disrupt the flow of supplies from Community Command depots to battlefields in South Vietnam. Serving as a hub for enemy movements are the rubber plantations of Chup and Mimot southeast of Kompong Cham and the lands on either side of the Mekong River northwards to Kratie. From this point, Hanoi can dispatch men and supplies southward to Vietnam or westward to attack the Cambodian heartland. While it is generally agreed that conquest of all Cambodia is the eventual aim of the Community Command, the amount of men and material needed to seize the countryside and topple the Phnom Penh government is probably more than Cambodia is worth to Hanoi, for the present at least. There is also the fact that an all out enemy assault in Cambodia would probably bring thousands of South Vietnamese troops swarming through the country with massive U.S. air support. Hanoi might find itself trapped between the forces of Cambodia and South Vietnam while substantial numbers of Batey, 13, son of a part-time instructor of the gallery in Memphis, Tenn. Macon police said most of the $5,000 paid by Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Register was recovered because Michael managed to "appropriate" an identification card from one of his abductors and later led police to the house where he was held. They arrested John Thomas Plummer, 20, who lives next door to the house, and charged him with kidnapping. Police said other arrests were expected. In Memphis, the Batey boy was abducted from his home by a bearded gunman at about 8:30 p.m. Thursday and released 2½ hours later after his father went on local television and radio to report that the photos would be taken down. The gunman had told him the boy would be released if he broadcast such a statement. There was no immediate arrest in the case. The photos, part of a show of more than 100 works that went on display at the Memphis Academy of Arts March 1, had been the subject of local controversy for the past week after one resident complained they were obscene. Police said the gunman entered the home of Dr. Richard C. Batey, a part-time instructor in humanities at the academy and director of the exhibition and ordered the father and two sisters to lie down on the den floor. In the Macon case, police

Hearnes Signs Funding Bill

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes Thursday signed an emergency bill carrying $14.8 million to keep state programs going until the end of the fiscal year June 30. It includes an immediate $50 a month pay increase for lower paid merit system employees at state hospitals who had threatened to strike during a long legislative hassle over the bill. It also carries money to keep major welfare programs operating at present levels through April, May and June. The governor made no changes in the bill. Included is $125,000 for a study to determine the feasibility of building a new carrier airport for the metropolitan St. Louis area. The Federal Aviation Administration has given Missouri six months to present its case before deciding whether the airport should be located in Missouri or Illinois. An Illinois site has already been tentatively selected. Sen. Robert A. Young, D-St. Louis, sent the governor a letter today urging that the $125,000 item be vetoed as unnecessary. Light Haul In Rash of Breakins

BENTON — A rash of breakins in Benton, Kelso and Ilmo last night were reported by Sheriff John Dennis.

Dennis said the post office at Benton was entered last night but nothing was reported missing. Thieves entered the building by forcing a back door.

Once inside the thief attempted to pry open a safe but was unsuccessful. Drawers were ransacked.

The thief forced a second door open and entered an office in another part of the building. The office, belonging to H. C. Watkins Jr., was undamaged and nothing was taken.

The Gilbert Tavern in Benton was entered. The thief broke out a window and took pennies and nearly $50 in silver.

Hanks Place in Kelso was entered but authorities have not completed their investigation. Dennis with Highway Patrol Eugene Harris and Deputy Sheriffs Paul Neal and Jack Stewart said that it was believed the three breakins were connected.

A fourth break in at Ilmo was not thought to be connected. Thieves broke into Anderson Park Tavern and stole about $40 in change from a juke box and a toll telephone. Eggs were broken on the floor of the tavern.

JAIL DESERVED

There are times when it is sad to see someone go to prison. On the other hand, there are those who deserve to go to jail. Such as, for example, the Los Angeles 31-year-old Hippie character who thought it might be "fun" to spike potato chips with LSD, and then serve them to guests at a large party.

Within fifteen minutes, the 50 victims began to experience what was described as a "hallucinogenic nightmare." Before it was over, eight of them were in such danger that it was necessary to rush them to a hospital. Fortunately, they lived.

The others all testified, later and in court, that they suffered "horrific effects." One could not speak, or hear, and everything became grotesquely deformed. Brilliant colors flashing all around was the last thing remembered before passing out.

Another complained of a lightheaded feeling, had trouble breathing, saw buildings sway, had chills, heard echoing sounds and was sure that death was near. A third thought that the sheriff's deputies attempting to rescue him were robots out to harm him.

Playing practical jokes is one thing. Poisoning someone with a chemical as dangerous as LSD is something else. Certainly the record of deaths, of violent suicides and of long-lasting mental and emotional disturbances caused by "acid" is well known. The Federal Bureau of Narcotics has warned that LSD is one of the two most dangerous drugs known — the other being heroin. LSD is so powerful that a single teaspoonful can "blow the minds" of over 1,000 people. A speck no larger than the point of a pin will take a user on a "trip" from 8 to 16 hours.

Fortunately, the Superior Court judge who heard the case sentenced the "prankster" to a term of six years to life in prison. We hope that the case will serve as an example and a warning to others who might be inclined to pull such a thoughtless trick.

FIGURING OUT THE ECONOMY

Despite the almost inevitable patfalls that come with trying to forecast the future, the reputation of private economic consultants remains high in the corporate world. Businessmen gaze in dismay at official government forecasts based less on sound economics than on wishful thinking. The "self-fulfilling prophecy" GNP estimates put out by President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisers, for example, simply don't provide a firm basis for sound planning.

Partly in reaction, registration for a one-day "Janeway Seminar" in New York City (N.Y. Athletic Club) on Wednesday, March 31, already has reached the limit of 100 participants. To hear Eliot Janeway tell businessmen "where they stand," companies must fork over $250 each (plus $100 for each additional participant). At lunchtime, those attending will get to hear Harrison Salisbury of the New York Times audit the world situation.

Janeway has been taking his lumps of late with gloomy stock market predictions. Although his earlier pessimism was vindicated by the market in 1969 and early 1970, he continued to cry bear as stocks moved up 40 per cent from their Penn Central lows. He sees the present market as badly overbought and, in his typical elliptical style, cautions: "The probabilities favor losses on any cruise of the Titanic."

Sometimes it appears that the private and government economists are working not only from different perspectives but from different worlds. The Commerce Department, for example, predicted early in March that the dollar value of new capital outlays in 1971 would rise 4.3 per cent from 1970. A week earlier, a survey by Rinfret-Boston Associates, an outfit headed by flamboyant Pierre Rinfret, forecast a strong gain of 11 per cent in capital outlays for new plants and equipment this year. Trying to outguess the volatile and paradoxical U.S. economy is no mean feat. Even the private economists admits it calls for a little extrasensory perception and a lot of luck.

IN WHAT COUNTRY WOULD YOU RATHER LIVE?

Of course America isn't perfect, but neither is Cuba nor any Socialist or Communist country. But at least America is working on it. And don't forget that millions in those other countries (who know conditions there, better than you do) want desperately to come here, from there.

Since a country is simply the people in it, what have you done lately to make yours a better one? Or, what are you doing to make it worse?

With all the isms, cults and organized protesters, there are really only two groups of people in the world -- happy and unhappy. The happy ones are so busy working, earning their own way, producing their share for the world's needs, that they haven't time to join the rioters. The unhappy ones are so busy screaming for their "rights", trying to be noticed, demanding somebody else take care of them, that they haven't time to join the self-respecting workers.

SOCIAL SECURITY CALLED WELFARE?

It has been called to our attention that upon reaching retirement age, oldsters are now being conditioned to understand that the Social Security benefits which they receive are regarded as welfare payments and not a return of taxes paid by them into the Social Security fund.

In support of the "welfare posture," has been the long standing limitation on the earnings of a Social Security beneficiary known as the retirement test. This is the provision of the law which limits the amount a person may earn who is receiving Social Security entitlement payments. The limitation has the effect of keeping the beneficiary on an income somewhat below that amount what the Department of Health, Education has regarded as the "poverty level."

So it is understandable that wage earners who have paid social security taxes on a mandatory basis for 30 years or more, with the knowledge that their employers were required to contribute a like amount, resent the present official attitude that upon retirement they are on welfare. The majority of potential retirement beneficiaries have believed that they had acquired a vested interest in a "fund" through their tax payments over the years.

The leg-iron of retirement test which limits earnings that may be received by the person who has retired is justified by the new welfare concept.

But no such test is applied to government employees who retire on a pension. For them there is no limitation on earnings.

So it is no wonder, in these circumstances, the wage earner and employer alike are not inclined to view the added burden of Social Security taxes with any more affection than they must confront all other increases in taxes.

The survival of the inequities of the Social Security system is an example of the extent to which members of Congress become captives of the administrative agencies and bureaucrats.

It is time for a change in the thinking in Washington and that means talking to our representatives in Congress.

Ben Franklin said it: "A house without woman and firelight, is like a body without soul or spirit."

FOR THE RECORD

When the cost of living rises to a new high, it is front page news. Forgotten in the rush to keep up are the people who are forced to live on fixed incomes. Some industries are in a position somewhat similar to these people. The railroads, like number of other publicly regulated services, are at a disadvantage when their cost of living goes up as a result of wage boosts and other cost increases.

There is nothing they can do to meet the problem except apply to regulatory authorities for rate increases. That they may starve to death in the interim between a cost of living boost and a compensatory boost in income seems to occur to no one -- even though as recent strike threats demonstrated, the nation is utterly dependent on reliable rail transport.

For the record, everyone should be made aware of just what happened to the railroads during inflationary 1969. Despite record revenues, earnings on the nation's railroads last year fell to the lowest level since 1961. Net railway operating income fell 3.5 per cent -- to $659 million from the $683 million reported in 1968.

This meant a rate of return on net investment of only 2.38 percent, down from 2.46 in 1968. Twenty - one of the nation's 74 Class I railroads ran up deficits for the year 1969. When we worry, and justifiably so, about the disasters that befall us, we should be reminded that the railroads, like the airlines, are in a position somewhat similar to these people. The railroads, like the bloodhounds are now loose again, searching up and down Pentagon corridors for our trail, growing menacingly at anyone who might have been seen talking to us.

The brass hats want to know how we found out that Air Force rainmakers have been seeding the clouds over the Ho Chi Minh trail network during the wet seasons.

This novel attempt to produce cloudbursts to wash out the trails, we reported, was known by the secret code name "Intermediary - Compatriot."

Only a few insiders were supposed to know that, and the brass would dearly like to find out who blabbed.

There is also outrage on the Pentagon's outer "E" ring, which the top brass inhabit, over our story about the contingency plans to bomb North Vietnam.

We reported that the plans, transmitted to the Pentagon last October 17 and kept constantly up to date, include the bombing and mining of Haiphong harbor.

It was our mention of the exact date that seemed to upset some generals the most.

—SECRET TAP—

Again last December, we told how the bosses of the armed forces radio -TV -publications empire sang songs, cracked bathroom jokes and roared with laughter as they decided whom to fire at Christmas time. The brass called an urgent meeting of employees to assure them our allegation were "false" and "malicious."

We offered, therefore, to play tapes of the secret proceedings and let the employees listen to the hilarity for themselves. Thereupon, Assistant Defense Secretary Roger Kelley gave up trying to deny the story and ordered an investigation instead to discover where we got the tapes.

He has now called in the FBI whose director, J. Edgar Hoover, happily assigned agents Leslie Chisholm, William Crowder and James Ott, Jr., to the investigation. The 76-year-old FBI chief is sore at us for using some of his own techniques to investigate him.

A contest has now developed between us to see who can find out the most about the other. At this point, I contend that my file on Hoover is more illuminating than his file on me.

The Pentagon's inspections chief himself, W. Donald Stewart, is handling the investigation of us assisted by his sidekick S. J. Cardice. We have questioned Chisholm, Cardice and Kelley about the probe. All declined comment. Chisholm would reveal only the spelling of his first name but refused to say how his last name is spelled.

The force, however, has its serious undertones. The Pentagon seeks to control the flow of information to the public by classifying all embarrassing facts, then intimidating anyone who dares to mention these classified facts outside of Pentagon circles. This is a form of censorship that the public shouldn't tolerate.

—MILITARY BEARDS—
America's beleaguered military brass is now faced with a new disciplinary problem which has literally broken out at Air Force bases across the country.

It's a painful, pimply skin disease called "pseudofolliculitis." Because it is impervious to medication and is seriously aggravated by shaving, it can best be treated by growing a beard.

But unhappily, many rebellious young recruits are already growing beards in defiance of regulations, and the brass hats are having a devil of a time figuring out which beards are forbidden and which are by doctors' orders.

It has become so confusing at Peace Air Force Base in New Hampshire that airmen with the disease are required to carry a copy of their shaving waiver.

But this has merely aggravated the problem because three extra file copies must be made of the shaving waiver, and this has caused a backlog of paperwork. Moreover, the

DECEPTIVELY SIMPLE
Politicians have made an attractive political issue out of generic versus brand name drugs by holding up the tempting bait that one drug is as good as another, as long as they contain the same chemical ingredients.

Superficially, a case can be made that generic drugs are often cheaper. Leaving out the question of price, are drugs with the same chemical make-up always equivalent? In other words, do they do as good a job at all times? Dr. Alfred Gilman, co-editor of "The Pharmacological Basis of Therapeutics," believes not. He says, "I am appalled by many of those statements which imply that generic drugs, marketed cheaply ... are the equivalent of established trademarked preparations merely because chemical analysis indicates that the preparation actually contains the specified amount of the drug."

Scientific authorities point out there are, in fact, many factors besides chemical contents which affect the action of a drug. A refrigerator or an automobile may contain a specified number of parts, but his does not mean all automobiles and all refrigerators are manufactured with the same care and are therefore of the same quality -- and so it is with drugs. But, use of an inferior drug may mean the difference between life and death.

CALIFORNIA WOMAN BELIEVES IN RAIL ADVERTISING THEME
Mrs. Theresa Riservato of Glendale, Calif., is a true believer in the railroads' current advertising theme: "America's Railroads. Who Needs Them? You Do. We All Do."

The Union Pacific explains it this way:
Mrs. Riservato and four children were lost in their car on a lonely road in the Devil's Playground area of the Mojave Desert, about 50 miles east of Barstow, Calif.

She drove alongside the UP's main line for about 30 miles, until she came to a crossing, where there was a telephone.

Chief Dispatcher James Hulihan, 200 miles away in Los Angeles, told Mrs. Riservato not to worry -- help was on the way.

A UP freight train soon stopped, and the crew provided the stranded group with food, water, flares and matches for a fire. The San Bernardino County sheriff's rescue squad -- notified by Mr. Hulihan -- arrived shortly thereafter and led Mrs. Riservato and the children out of the desert.

IT'S GOLF TIME:
Coordinated lightweight sweaters and mock turtleneck shirts are a fashion highlight on the links this season, according to the Men's Fashion Association ... Many golfers observed in the early days of the spring have adopted the new ideas in sport hats and fun hats now in the stores. Aside from their practicality, they add a jaunty touch to any outfit ... The belted cardigan sweater look has gone over well with sportsmen ... For appearance as well as greater comfort, golfers have been buying pleated slacks -- now back in fashion.

H.L. Hunt Says
HELPING OUR PRISONERS OF WAR
The condition of our prisoners of war in North Vietnam is of deep concern to every patriot, and we all should do whatever we can for them. Recently the president of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, the Reverend J.A.O. Preus, issued a statement calling upon all churches to unite in efforts to help our P.O.W.'s.

He detailed how the North Vietnamese have consistently violated the Geneva Convention of 1949 regarding prisoners of war, although they signed this convention. We know, he said, "that they have not released the names of all those who are P.O.W.'s....that they have not released the sick and the wounded....that they have not allowed any impartial inspection of their prison camps." Instead, we have heard nothing "except accounts of horror and inhumane treatment."

Rev. Preus outlined a five-point program of action: He declared Sunday, March 14 "a Day of Prayer for the American Prisoners of War," called for "a sustaining program of education and prayer within our churches," contacted the leaders of all major Christian denominations "urging them to join us in an effort," will contact Lutheran leaders in other countries to urge them to bring their influence to bear, and will organize a group of church leaders to request permission "to inspect the P.O.W.camps....in order that we can bring an unbiased account to the American people and the world of the conditions that exist in these camps." This program could be adopted by churches of every denomination, giving individuals throughout the country the opportunity to help our prisoners of war. H.L.H.

Dr. Hard Hat: Labor rejects intellectuals bid for Alliance: Launches own campaign to oust Nixon

WASHINGTON -- There is a tempest in the midnight martini set here over an old letter which a big man on campus, Harvard's 6-foot -8 Professor John Kenneth Galbraith, dispatched from England last fall to the most skilled curmudgeon of all, labor chief George Meany.

This manicured missive arrived last November shortly after the 1970 elections. And so complimentary was it that it startled insiders since Prof. Galbraith and his Americans for Democratic Action (ADA), now penniless, hopeless and baseless, appeared always to confuse anti - communism with antediluvianism. Galbraith, an economics professor and a founder and former national ADA chairman, is, after all, a Fabian Socialist, who at 62 is vituperatively critical of those labor chiefs who don't agree with his brand of socio - economics. And Mr. Meany is the world's No. 1 hard hat.

Prof. Galbraith long has believed in recognizing Maoist China, dumping the anti - Communist Taiwan government. The former U.S. ambassador has been outspokenly, searingly critical of President Nixon's and former President Johnson's foreign policies and he fought many of the men backed by labor in the '70 congressional elections. Also, inside labor, the Galbraith - ADA bloc is held responsible for the defeat of Hubert Humphrey in 1968.

Why then should Prof. Galbraith write, all the way from Cambridge University in England, to the man he has scolded so often politically? Why would Prof. Galbraith, devotee of former Sen. Eugene McCarthy, write to the pragmatic cigar -chomping Meany that while there may be some doubt that Mr. Galbraith is the leader of academe, there is no doubt that Mr. Meany is the leader of American labor? And why write with such heavy praise of Mr. Meany swinging the AFL-CIO towards the economic issues in the 1970 campaign, which brought so many Democrats into office? Why seek a conference with a self - educated ex-plumber?

The answer is that Prof. Galbraith knows they do have one thing in common -- the unmaking of a president.

That is, pushing Richard Nixon into history as a one-term president.

But that's not enough for the labor movement. Or at least for the AFL-CIO leadership. Mr. Meany is not very enthusiastic about seeing Prof. Galbraith. The professor needs a base of power. Mr. Meany has a powerful team.

There is some significance in Prof. Galbraith's short, one-page letter. Inherent in it is the recognition that middle America has rejected the intellectual. It is a dialectic sense an indirect hard hat. They've read what he's said about them. They've understood him well. And they dig him now, too.

But it will take a lot of wooing. Prof. Galbraith and his company will be surprised at the literacy of the heads under the hard hats. They've read what he's said about them. They've understood him well. And they dig him now, too.

In Defense of Women

by H.L. Mencken

THE ETERNAL ROMANCE

But whatever the future of monogamous marriage, there will never be any decay of that agreeable adventurousness which now lies at the bottom of all transactions between the sexes. Women may emancipate themselves, they may borrow the whole bag of masculine tricks, and they may cure themselves of their present desire for the vegetable security of marriage, but they will never cease to be women, and so long as they are women they will remain provocative to men. Their chief charm today lies precisely in the fact that they are dangerous, that they threaten masculine liberty and autonomy, that their sharp minds present a menace vastly greater than that of acts of God and the public enemy — and they will be dangerous for ever. Men fear them, and are fascinated by them. They know how to show their teeth charmingly; the more enlightened of them have perfected a superb technique of fascination. It was Nietzsche who called them the recreation of the warrior — not of the poltroon, remember, but of the warrior. A profound saying. They have an infinite capacity for rewarding masculine industry and enterprise with small and irresistible flatteries; their acute understanding combines with their capacity for evoking ideas of beauty to make them incomparable companions when the serious business of life is done, and the time has come to expand comfortably in the interstellar ether.

Every man, I daresay, has his own notion of what constitutes perfect peace and contentment, but all of those notions, despite the fundamental conflict of the sexes, revolve around women. As for me — and I hope I may be pardoned, at this late stage in my inquiry, for intruding my own personality — I reject the two commonest of them: passion, at least in its more adventurous and melodramatic aspects, is too exciting and alarming for so indolent a man, and I am too egoistic to have much desired to be mothered. What, then, remains for me? Let me try to describe it to you.

It is the close of a busy and vexatious day — say half past five or six o'clock of a winter afternoon. I have had a cocktail or two, and am stretched out on a divan in front of a fire, smoking. At the edge of the divan, close enough for me to reach with my hand, sits a woman not too young, but still goodlooking and well-dressed — above all, a woman with a soft, low-pitched, agreeable voice. As I snooze she talks — of anything, everything, all the things that women talk of: books, music, the play men, other women. No politics. No business. No religion. No metaphysics. Nothing challenging and vexatious — but remember, she is intelligent; what she says is clearly expressed, and often picturesquely. I observe the fine sheen of her hair, the pretty cut of her frock, the glint of her white teeth, the arch of her eye-brow, the graceful curve of her arm. I listen to the exquisite murmur of her voice. Gradually I fall asleep — but only for an instant. At once, observing it, she raises her voice ever so little, and I am awake. Then to sleep again — slowly and charmingly down that slippery hill of dreams. And then awake again, and then asleep again, and so on.

I ask you seriously: could anything be more unutterably beautiful? The sensation of falling asleep is to me the most exquisite in the world. I delight in it so much that I even look forward to death itself with a sneaking wonder and desire. Well, here is sleep poetized and made doubly sweet. Here is sleep set to the finest music in the world. I match this situation against any that you can think of. It is not only enchanting; it is also, in a very true sense, ennobling. In the end, when the girl grows prettily miffed and throws me out, I return to my sorrows somehow purged and glorified. I am a better man in my own sight. I have grazed upon the fields of asphodel. I have been genuinely, completely and unregrettably happy.

After Marriage 25 in Family

ONAGA, Kan. (AP) — When Patricia Ebert of Onaga marries David Hund of Paxico, Kan., May 3, there will be 25 members in their family, and 22 of them will be living at home.

Mrs. Ebert, whose husband was killed in an automobile accident in 1963, has 12 children. Hund, whose wife died of cancer last year, has 11. The children range in age from two to 22.

The biggest is Hund's son Tim, a 6-foot-11 basketball player at Wamego, Kan., High School.

The couple hopes all 23 children will attend the wedding. Mrs. Ebert has two sons in military service overseas and a daughter, Barbara Turner, lives in Waverly, Tenn.

Hund has 80 milk cows and 40,000 chickens on his farm and he is enlarging his nine-room house by two bedrooms and another bath.

And transportation shouldn't be a problem. Hund has eight licensed vehicles including a school bus he has refitted for camping.

Mrs. Ebert says the kids get along well and have ordered their first breakfast together. She says she will have to fry at least 40 eggs to fill the orders, along with lots of doughnuts and corn meal mush.

"After my wife passed away, I got awfully lonesome," said Hund. Then he said the Rev. Tom Kearns of Sacred Heart Roman Catholic church in Paxico came to visit and "told me 'you have to get out and meet people; you can't just sit here. I know someone who would be good company.' That's how this thing got started."

The someone Father Kearns introduced him to last October was Mrs. Ebert. They became engaged early this year.

Ann Landers

Warts can be "Wished" Away

Dear Ann Landers: I'd like to get my hands on that snob who wrote the obnoxious letter saying she had no use for foreign women.

The writer made a point that every foreign woman she knows has a story about how rich she was over there. Everybody's father owned a factory or a bank. She criticized the way we hold the fork in the left hand and push food with the knife.

I wish the writer of that letter could live in Poland for a few years. She wouldn't be so concerned with silverware. She would then understand why so many people want to come to America. Someone should remind her that her ancestors also came here from a foreign country — unless she is an American Indian. Furthermore, 800 million people in the world don't use forks at all. They use chopsticks. Does that mean they are ignorant? Put her in her place, Ann. —Disgusted.

Dear Dis: It isn't necessary. You did — and I thank you.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a mature 20-year-old who is in love with a 25-year-old man. My problem consists mainly of the past — both mine and his. I was going with a fellow my parents thought the world of, even though he was spoiled and childish. We fought most of the time. I decided we could never have a good life together so I dropped him.

Now I have met someone I planned.

Daughter Sues Father

LOUISVILLE, KY. (AP) — A University of Louisville coed has expressed bitterness over an appeals court ruling that her father is not required to support her at school. The father had frowned on what he called her "hippie" life style.

"My father has spent more money to fight this case than he would have if he would have just given me the money," the coed said. "I'm very bitter about this reversal."

Neither the girl nor her father was identified in the court's public records, but a coed who said she was the girl spoke with a Louisville Courier-Journal reporter Tuesday night.

The Appellate Division of the New York Supreme Court ruled 4-to-1 Tuesday in reversing a lower court order requiring the girl's father to pay her support or be imprisoned for 30 days.

In the initial action before Family Court, the father said he cut off funds because his daughter was a "hippie" whose life-style "stinks."

The appellate majority said, "The father in return for his maintenance and support is entitled to set reasonable standards, rules and regulations for his child."

TROTTERS' HUBERT AUSBIE
It is unfortunate that 'overnight' success takes years, as in the case of Hubert (Geese) Ausbie of the Harlem Globetrotters.

It would make a nice story for a kid out of college to be playing for the Magicians of Basketball when the star sprained his ankle, the rookie steps in and becomes a hero. Makes a good story but usually not the way it happens.

In most cases, it takes years of hard work, determination and self-sacrifice and it was no different for Ausbie, 6-5 comic who'll be with the Trotters at Sikeston high fieldhouse on April 5th.

"Geese" Ausbie began playing basketball in grade school in Crescent, Oklahoma. He blossomed into one of the top athletes in the Sooner state, setting scoring records that have yet to be broken.

He had a sensational career at Douglas High in Crescent before continuing his development at Philander Smith College in Little Rock, where he aroused interest as a cager who could score well.

After graduation, Ausbie signed a Globetrotter contract. He was good enough to make the squad — no more, no less. It has taken him four years on the sand-lots, three years of prep action, four years of college play and nine years of Trotter ball to become an 'overnight' success.

The gangling, 32-year old Ausbie now shares top billing with Bob (Showboat) Hall, a 21-year veteran. Ausbie combines his unique comedy with topflight basketball. He's a third generation Globetrotter refining the art of clowning on the hardwood.

Like other 'overnight' successes, "Geese" Ausbie has been paying his dues — every day for the past 20 years.

TROTTERS' HALL FOUND 'FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH'; PLAYING 22ND SEASON

Ponce deLeon searched in vain for the "Fountain of Youth" but the Harlem Globetrotters have a man who found it. The man is Bob "Showboat" Hall, world-renowned court jester.

Hall is playing his 22nd season, a club record, and is one of the greatest ball handlers and finest showmen the sport has ever produced.

The 6-2, 190- pound star is a graduate of Miller High School in his native Detroit and received his "graduate work" in basketball at Brewster Center, a well known training ground for athletes in the Motor City, a spot which has produced a number of topnotch Globetrotters over the years.

The durable dandy has played an estimated 4,500 games for the fancy court magicians, without a question a record for the sport.

Hall is a favorite in all of the 87 countries around the world where the antics and clever play of the Globetrotters have been witnessed.

In addition to his ability as a comedian and ball handler, Hall is an outstanding leader.

"He's been a fine teacher and great influence with young players," said general manager George Gillett. "He's one of the most dedicated men I've known in sports."

TINY TROTTER ROBERTSON MASTER DRIBBLER, COMIC

Robertson is a tiny Trotter 5-7, and the finest young basketball talent to come out of New York City's Harlem via Loyola University of Chicago.

He is a premier dribbler with the most famous basketball quintet the world has ever known, his passing ability is flawless and he shoots with a deadly accuracy.

To be a Globetrotter takes an added talent ... fun is the added dimension and Pablo in his fourth season with the "Magicians of Basketball" brings more than his share of the comedy to each game. Originally, it was not in the cards for him to assume any comedy roles, but natural flair won in the end. Pablo Robertson is a court jester as well as a show dribbler ... A bag of dynamite who explodes to the delight of the fans.

Bruins Seek 5th Straight

HOUSTON (AP) — Jack Kraft believes his scrappy Villanova Wildcats are ready for the game of their lives against defending NCAA national basketball champion UCLA Saturday, but he isn't so sure about himself.

Drained but smiling after Thursday night's nerve-jangling 92-89 double overtime victory over Western Kentucky in the semifinals, the Wildcat coach said "I know my players will make it ... I'm just worried about myself."

UCLA's poised Bruins placed themselves in position for an unprecedented fifth consecutive NCAA title with a 68-60 victory over Kansas in the second semifinal as a record 31,428 fans looked on in the Astrodome.

The gray-haired Kraft, who suits up only nine players and seldom plays more than six, said his Pennsylvania "Iron Men" are "a bunch of fine physical specimens. They are durable and they'll be ready for Saturday."

Forward Howard Porter and center Hank Siemiontkowski shared heroics for the slightly favored Wildcats.

Siemiontkowski, a 6-foot-7, 230-pound junior scored 31 points before he fouled out with four seconds remaining in regulation play. The foul could have given him the goat's role, but Western Kentucky's Jerry Dunn blew the shot on a one-and-one situation to send the game into overtime 74-all.

Porter hit a baseline jumper with 11 seconds remaining to send the game into double overtime 87-all. The 6-foot-8 senior blocked two shots in the double overtime and his bucket gave Villanova the lead to stay at 89-87.

UCLA coach John Wooden, who has 27 consecutive NCAA playoff victories to his credit, unleashed All-America 6-foot-8 forward Sidney Wicks one-on-one against Kansas' 6-foot-10 Dave Robisch in the battle of full court presses.

Wicks brought the ball up court and set up the Bruin offense.

Wicks scored 21 points and guard Henry Bibby added 18 from the outside.

Robisch has held to 17 points by the swarming UCLA press.

GeorgiaTechFaces North Carolina

NEW YORK (AP) — Paul Hoffman stood in the runway under the stands at Madison Square Garden and sighed.

"Well, listen," the St. Bonaventure junior said, "there's always another game, another season. And it was just another foul shot."

Only minutes before, the 6-foot-1 guard from Hazelton, Pa., had stood at the foul line, preparing to eliminate Georgia Tech from the National Invitational Tournament and propel the Bonnies into Saturday's championship against rugged North Carolina.

But it never happened. His first shot whipped around the rim and out. The second one barely touched the iron and, though Hoffman didn't know it at the moment, the Bonnies were on their way to losing the double-overtime game 76-71 before 18,812 frenzied fans Thursday night.

North Carolina had a much easier time of it against Atlantic Coast Conference rival Duke, belting the Blue Devils 73-67 in the first of the two semifinals.

Duke will face St. Bonaventure in the consolation game preceding the nationally televised 1 p.m., EST, championship contest.

After a 67-67 tie, Jim Thorne's basket on a goaltending call and two foul shot apiece by Tommy Wilson and Bob Murphy put the Engineers on top 73-67 and they coasted home. Thorne finished with a game-high 27 points. Carl Jackson had 18 to top the Bonnies.

Tech Coach John "Whack" Hyder said he was surprised his Engineers were able to keep up with the usually hardrunning Bonnies. And he acknowledged that, for a while, it seemed neither team really wanted to win.

He recalled losing to St. Bonaventure by a slim 70-68 last Dec. 29 in the Gator Bowl tournament and, after the game, kidding with Bonnies' Coach Larry Weise about having a rematch.

"I guess neither of us really believed we'd get it but, boy we sure did," Hyder grinned.

Then someone asked whether he'd joked similarly with North Carolina Coach Dean Smith after the Tar Heels walloped Tech 87-58 earlier this year.

"Well ... "Hyder stalled, "you see, some coaches are I guess you could say more intense about the game than others—even when they win by 29 points. There are some you can kid with and some you can't. I guess I won't have much to say to Dean."

Smith didn't have much to say about the Tar Heels' opening game victory against the Blue Devils.

One Run Game Highlights Exhibitions

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The major league teams must be getting in shape for the opening of the regular baseball season April 5. Or, at least, they're working at not scoring more runs than necessary.

There were six preseason games Thursday decided by one run with three ending in 2-1 scores.

Of course, some teams aren't in shape like Cincinnati and Cleveland. The Reds belted Los Angeles 10-5 with 18 hits; the Indians got 20 hits in dispatching the Milwaukee Brewers 13-8.

In other games San Diego edged San Francisco 2-1; the Chicago White Sox nipped Minnesota 2-1; Philadelphia clipped Houston 2-1; Pittsburgh defeated Detroit 3-2; Atlanta downed Washington 8-7; California took Oakland 7-6; Boston beat St. Louis 6-2; and the New York Yankees topped the New York Mets 4-2.

Tommy Helms and Woody Woodward slammed home runs for Cincinnati as the Reds got 13 and seven runs hits off Los Angeles' Bill Singer. Helms, Lee May and Bernie Carbo each got three hits.

Richie Allen of the Dodgers also got a hit—on the head. He was injured before the game when he ran into a palm tree while chasing fly balls. The team doctor reported Allen had a mild concussion and some severe contusions. He is expected to be out a week.

Eddie Leon got four hits, including a home run and a double, Ray Fosse homered and Ted Ford and Buddy Bradford got three hits with two doubles each in the Cleveland victory over Milwaukee.

Ed Spiezio, playing for the first time since ending his holdout six days ago, blasted a home run in the 10th inning for San Diego's victory.

Walt Williams, Rick Reichardt and Bill Melton strung singles together in the 10th inning for Chicago's slim victory over Washington.

Wood Fryman pitched eight innings for Philadelphia. He got the victory when Terry Harmon doubled and Willie Montanez tripled in the eighth off Houston's George Culver.

Gene Clines' triple drove in two runs in the sixth for the Pittsburgh margin of victory. Al Oliver homered for the Pirates' other run.

Pinch-hitter Hal King hit a two-run homer in the ninth inning for Atlanta's triumph over Washington. Earl Williams also homered for the Braves and Joe Foy and Ed Stroud each hit their third of the spring for the Senators.

Alex Johnson, fined recently for lack of hustle, showed a lot of it as he bolted home with the winning score for California when Oakland second baseman John Donaldson dropped a relay from the outfield.

Jim Fregosi homered for the Angels while Reggie Jackson, Rick Monday and Gene Tenace hit circuit shots for the Athletics.

Boston jumped on St. Louis pitcher Jerry Reuss for five runs in the eighth inning. The big belt for Boston was a basesloaded single by Rico Petrocelli. George Scott homered for the Red Sox.

Mel Stottlemyre and Stan Bahnsen of the Yankees held the Mets to four hits. The Yanks scored twice in the first and in the fifth off Jerry Kossman, who became the first Met to work seven innings in an exhibition game.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Games at Washington Aug. 21 and Cincinnati Aug. 28 complete the St. Louis Cardinals 1971 exhibition football schedule, the National Football League team announced today.

The Cardinals open exhibition play at home Aug. 14 against Houston in the annual Cardinal Glennon Memorial Hospital benefit game. The other home game will be Sept. 10 against Cleveland.

On Sept. 4 the Cardinals meet the Chiefs in Kansas City in the fifth Governor's Cup battle.

Cards Bullpen Falter

ASSOCIATED PRESS
Kansas City's Dick Drago has been nominated as the Royals' opening day - of - the - season pitcher following his four-hit, seven - inning performance Thursday against Minnesota. The Royals won 6-3.

The right hander was touched for only one unearned run.

St. Louis, meanwhile, also got a strong four-hit performance out of Jerry Reuss for seven innings against the Boston Red Sox. However, the bullpen help couldn't protect a 2-1 lead and Boston shelled the Cards, 6-2.

Kansas City is idle today. Manager Bob Lemon continues to mull over plans for April 3, the deadline for trimming seven more players from the roster.

Lemon said "I'm not sure whether we'll break camp with 10 or 11 pitchers. It all depends on (Wally) Bunker. If his arm still is tender, we'll take 11. If he's o.k., we'll take 10."

Lemon said he's thinking in terms of a five-man starting rotation all season.

Moe Drabowsky took the Red Sox shelling. After striking out the first Boston batter he faced, he was raked for four hits and five runs.

Rookie Luis Melendez homered for the first St. Louis run and Jim Beachamp's single and Julian Javier's bloop double accounted for the other.

Mike Torrez will start for St. Louis today in a game against the Chicago White Sox at Sarasota.

Allen Loved By Mates

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Beloved Richie Allen?

Yep the volatile slugger and oft-boomed outfielder has become a well-liked player by his new teammates of 1971, the Los Angeles Dodgers, and even more so when the palm of fate strikes him down.

Thursday it was a simple palm of tree, however. Allen, running full tilt for a fly ball during outfield practice, crashed head on with the large tree which is on the playing field at Vero Beach's Holman Stadium. In seconds, the entire Dodger squad was around the fallen Allen, who hadn't lost consciousness.

An examination showed no broken bones but injuries to the head, neck, right shoulder and wrist included numerous cuts and, for precautionary reasons, Allen was ordered to spend 24 hours in a hospital bed at Dodgertown.

Twelve palm trees, three light towers and a scoreboard dot the outfield at the Dodger spring training site but over the years, even with guys like the blithesome Pete Reiser on the Dodger team, no player ever was hurt running into them.

Willie Davis, the first man over to Allen's side Thursday, said it was "ridiculous" to have such things on a playing field.

Reddy says:
Spring is here!
For safety's sake...

plant your Shrubs and Trees Carefully!

Remember...newly planted trees and shrubs reach upward and outward an amazing distance as they grow!

When planting trees and shrubs near a utility line, it pays to make sure they won't interfere with electric or telephone service when they mature. For safety's sake, observe these minimum planting distances from utility lines:

10 ft. for shrubs maturing to 15 ft. high
20 ft. for trees that will grow to 25 ft. high
30 ft. for trees that will grow to 40 ft. high

If you plant closer than these minimums, trees and shrubs may require severe pruning, destroying their natural beauty.

Identical morning services will be at 9 a.m. and at 10:45 and communion service will be observed at 7 p.m.

The opening of the church facility comes three years after a fire which destroyed the former building March 23, 1968. Since the congregation has been holding services in the Rex Theatre with Sunday School classes in various places, including the Scott County Milling Company office building on Center Street.

Doors to the church will be opened at 8 a.m. Sunday with the organ meditations beginning 8:50 a.m. for the first service and at 10:45 a.m. for the second. Mrs. J. E. Childress is the organist.

The choir, under the direction of Gordon Beaver, will sing the responses and the anthems, "Lead on, O King Eternal," by Starks, and "He is Our King," by Davis.

Ministers to participate in the service will be the District Superintendent, Dr. Elbridge W. Bartley, Jr., the Rev. Jonathon O. Ensor, the Rev. Joe G. Black, the Rev. Harold O. Norton, and the pastor, the Rev. Joseph H. Wagner. Marshals will be David Benoist and Gregory Larence, with Stephen Jones and Mary Esther Wagner serving as acolytes.

The church is complete with the exception of the art glass windows, which are scheduled to be installed in a few weeks.

WITNESSING WITH COMPASSION

Witnessing with compassion is the dream of every growing Christian. But usually dreams are not realized by those who spend their time building air castles. Behind every dream come true, we find determination, discipline, and even drudgery sometimes.

Witnessing with much compassion is better than witnessing with little or none at all, but we may have to do some of the latter before we realize the blessings of the former. Study books which tell us we must go with a broken heart to be an effective soulwinner could be putting a hamstring on God's outreach. Crawling comes before walking, and walking takes a lot of falls before the practice is mastered.

Compassion is a divine attribute imparted to believers for their participation in the ministry of reconciliation. Like faith, it is both initiated in the redemptive encounter and strengthened or increased through usage. He who would have more concern for the lost should spend more time introducing such people to God through the gospel.

The prime mover for gospel outreach is not how much we love man, anyway. It is how much we love God! Get a person right with God! . . . right enough to obey the Lord's command instead of waiting for the moving of the water. Get him to go and tell, and Christ's compassion will flow through that one like rivers of living water.

Sin Destroys

The common denominator of all people is sin. 1 John 1:8 states, "If we say we have no sin we deceive ourselves and the truth is not in us." Yes, the Bible declares, "all have sinned and fallen short of the glory of God. There is none righteous, no not one." Turn on your radio and hear of the crime and violence rampant in our world. Open your morning newspaper and you can see sin sprawled in broad, glaring headlines.

Critics of the Bible can argue against the existence of God, Heaven, and Hell and it may take a while to prove them wrong, but there is one thing a person cannot argue with, that is sin. It is too much with us. It is the common disease of every man. All the misery, sorrow, anguish, heartache, all the murders, wars, pain, and despair that fill the world are a result directly or indirectly of sin.

Sin promises us happiness, joy and gaiety, but brings us sadness, despair, and, eventually, spiritual death. Sin destroys our relationship with each other and with God. We lie to each other, steal from each other, we say cruel, unkind things to each other, we sin against each other, thus, the destruction of every good relationship is a result of sin. Behind the beautiful mask of sin there lurks an ugly monster.

To the extent we eliminate sin from our lives, to that extent we personally become happier and better. To that extent, we make the world we live in a better place.

Church to Be Built of Grand Ole Opry House

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The famed Grand Ole Opry House here will be dismantled soon, its owners say, and the brick and wood used to build a church.

"She began as a house of worship," Irvin Waugh, president of radio station WSM in Nashville, which owns the historic building, said Saturday. "And we think she should have another life as a house of worship."

Waugh said the church would be built at nearby Opryland, U.S.A., which is scheduled to open next year.

The home of some of country music's finest performers was built in 1932 for evangelist Sam Jones by one of his converts, Tom Ryman. The building was purchased by WSM in 1963.

Since 1941 it has been the home of the weekly "Grand Ole Opry" broadcast. Evangelist Billy Sunday, entertainer Charlie Chaplain, temperance leader Carrie Nation and politician William Jennings Bryan all appeared at one time or another on her stage.

Funeral Home Open for Business

The Christian Memorial Funeral Home Inc., under the ownership and management of George Patterson opened for business over the weekend at 422 North Main St.

The business completed a $50,000 remodeling program in the former Kellett garage building, which later became a bowling alley. The building is 134 feet long and 60 feet wide. The building has a chapel 80 by 32 feet, with a seating capacity of 200, two staterooms, two lobbies, one at the front entrance, 30 by 18 feet, and the other at the side entrance, 30 by 14 feet, and a selection room, 30 by 15 feet.

The decor is in Mediterranean style with furniture covered in gold and green velvet, and nylon pile carpeting. The front portion has an office, which will be in charge of Mrs. Mary Klutts, and Evelyn Knauer as public relations representative. The office adjoins the lobby.

At the side and rear of the building is a concrete paved parking lot.

All equipment has arrived. The exterior of the building will be remodeled.

The public is invited to attend the open house Thursday.

Five Steps to Reduce Heart Attack Risk

COLUMBIA — What better way to greet spring — the season of renewal — than to start taking better care of your heart so that it might see you through many more healthy seasons, says the Missouri Heart Association.

With better health as a goal, the Missouri Heart Association urges all residents of Missouri to begin now to reduce their risk of heart attack, the nation's over-riding health problem. It recommends these steps for adults and youngsters alike, for the earlier preventive measures are begun, the better chance to escape premature heart problems.

1. Set a schedule of regular physical check-ups so that a physician can detect whether certain risk factors such as high blood pressure or diabetes are present, and begin prompt treatment. (Both conditions are associated with the artery disease that leads to heart attack, and some 21 million Americans are estimated to have some form of high blood pressure, says the Missouri Heart Association.)
2. If no special diet is required, modify eating habits to avoid high - cholesterol foods and control the intake of fats. Less animal - saturated - fats should be eaten and a larger share of the fat requirements should come from vegetable - polyunsaturated - fats. (The former raise cholesterol levels in the blood and the latter lower it, says the Missouri Heart Association.)
3. Don't smoke cigarettes. Cigarette smokers have twice the risk of heart attack as that of non-smokers.
4. Adjust calorie intake to achieve and maintain normal weight. Obesity is associated with high blood pressure and diabetes, and raises the risk of heart attack. Correcting obesity may also reduce the concentration of fatty substances in the blood that lead to artery clogging.
5. Start up and follow regularly a program of exercise that is determined by your doctor to be compatible with your age and physical condition. It will tone up the muscles, stimulate the circulation and help to avoid overweight.

There is no guarantee that any person will escape a heart attack by following these five points, says the Missouri Heart Association. Yet, there is mounting scientific evidence that thousands of lives can be prolonged by following a risk reducing program. Isn't it worth the try?

FOR THE FIRST TIME IN 30 YEARS IT MAKES SENSE TO PLANT MORE COTTON.

By Gerald Dearing

Not since World War II has the position of cotton looked so promising. Here are three solid factors that cotton farmers should consider carefully before declaring their planting intentions.

1. Several successive poor crop years have reduced cotton stocks. There is now some question of whether we will have enough cotton to supply the demands in the coming years. Cotton carryover next summer may decline to 4½ million bales, near the minimum level necessary for sustained mill production. Cotton exports are expected to increase this year by as much as ¾ million bales due to dwindling world stocks, record foreign consumption prospects and the smallest free-world production in four years.

2. There is solid evidence that cotton is regaining some of the favor we've been losing to man-made fabrics in the last few decades. Furniture manufacturers report that cotton denim and corduroy are increasingly popular furniture upholstery materials. But they also report difficulty in obtaining them. If we cannot supply mill demands they will look elsewhere once and for all.

3. For the first time in 30 years we have a cotton program geared to production; not curtailment. You will have the opportunity to grow cotton for the market, while the major portion of your income is protected by production payments. Marketing quotas have been abolished, and there is no penalty for planting excess cotton. And since projected yield is based on actual production, it may be necessary to plant extra acres to protect future projected yield.

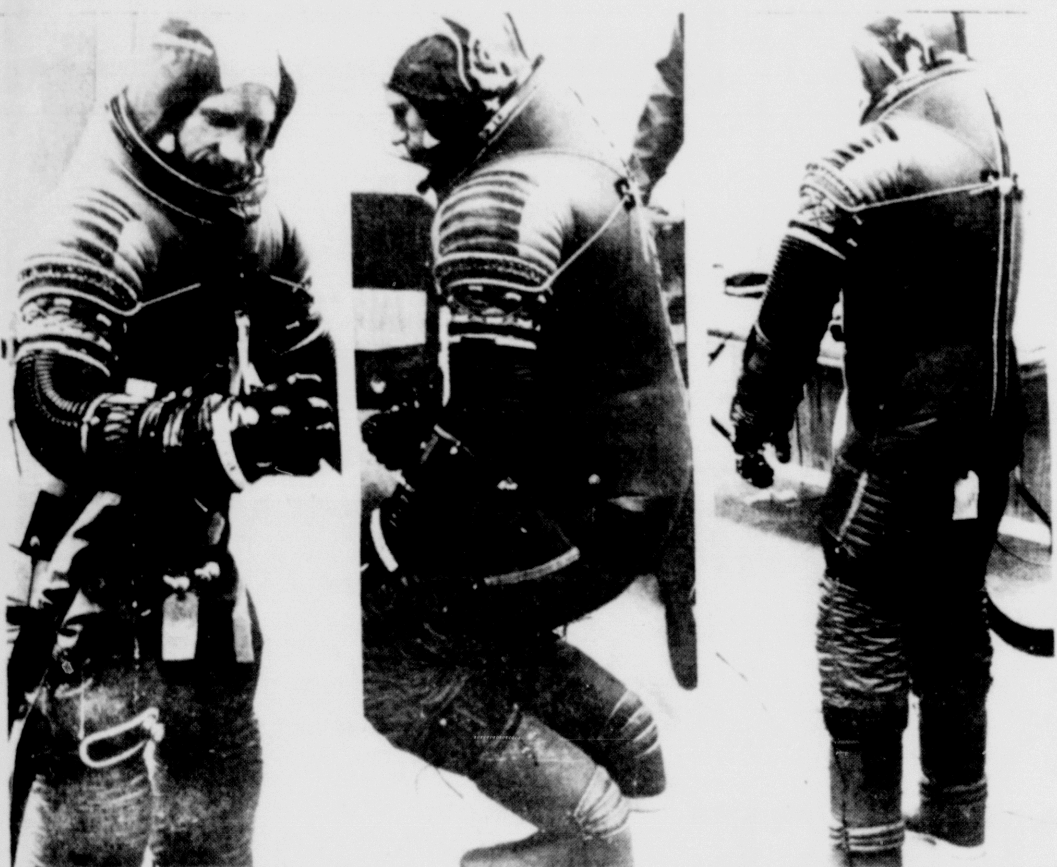

The point is that now it makes sense to plant more cotton. And the future of cotton may depend on the industry's ability to produce this year. Any other markets that cotton loses due to shortages may never be regained.

THREE FACES OF ENOCH POWELL, the man who to many Britons is the man of the coming hour and to others a threat to civil peace and democracy. Since his outspoken views led to expulsion from the conservative party leadership, he has become a symbol of opposition to nonwhite immigration in Britain. The country's recent racial and labor difficulties have brought additional attention to the former professor of classical Greek turned impassioned politician — "demagogue," according to some quarters. Boomed by supporters as a future prime minister, he has strong opinions on other issues, including opposition to British membership in the Common Market.

LATEST FASHION in space suits is tried out by astronaut Alfred M. Worden Jr., Command Module pilot for the Apollo 15 lunar mission, set for a July 26 launch. The new model features greater durability, easier donning and removing, improved comfort and visibility and increased neck, shoulder, hand, waist and leg mobility. For actual use in space, suit will be covered with a fireproof-cloth outer skin.

One of many hybrid varieties of tomatoes, Better Boy is new for this year. Its superior characteristics are resistance to several common tomato diseases and to nematodes (eel worms).

Growing hybrid varieties of vegetables will save you cash for you'll produce sturdier plants, more disease-resistant in many cases and obtain greater yield (so you can use less space) as well as larger leaves, fruits or roots.

If you're unfamiliar with hybrids, it's time you knew about them. They're the progeny of 2 different varieties, each selected as a parent for 1 or more outstanding characteristics that, combined, will mean a better plant for you, the gardener.

After plants of both parents have been grown, pollinated with their own pollen generation after generation to accentuate those important characters, and resulting seed has been harvested and replanted all those years, the result is an "inbred" line of plants — scrawny and unattractive, but bearing the characters for which they were selected.

When inbred plants are crossed, that is the pollen from the flowers of 1 parent has been brushed by hand on the pistils of blossoms of the other, plants grown from the resulting seeds will display "hybrid vigor". That's what you get in the hybrid seeds you buy for only a few cents more per packet than those of ordinary varieties. You also get the desirable characteristics for which the plant breeder has gone through the long, expensive process outlined above.

There are hybrids of both flowers and vegetables. Most corn varieties available are hybrids; those mammoth petunias and marigolds are hybrids. Look in the catalogs or on the seed packets for the designation F₁. This is shorthand for "first filial," a first generation hybrid from those inbred parent plants. Those varieties are your "best buy".

West German hospitals treated 9,148,290 persons in 1969 out of a total population of 60 million, the Federal Statistics Office reports.

The Prayer from The Upper Room

Now we we in a mirror dimly, but then face to face. Now I know in part; then I shall understand fully, even as I have been fully understood. (1 Corinthians 13:12, RSV)

PRAYER: Dear Lord, help us to put our lives in Thy hands, though we cannot always understand why things happen the way they do. Grant us faith that we may ever trust in Thee, Amen.

It's The Law

Rufus All Wet In Dog Case

By Jack Strauss, L.L.B.

Rufus was making his rounds through a factory as a night watchman when he heard the frantic barking of his pet dog Harry. It seemed that Harry, had fallen into a river that flowed past the factory. Flipping off his shoes and flinging his jacket to the wind, Rufus dove into the icy waters to effect a rescue.

As it developed, however, Harry proved to be the better of the two swimmers. While the paddling canine managed to reach shore unassisted, waterlogged Rufus had to be hauled out of the drink just as he was going down for the traditional third time.

Soggy and unable to wrok for a long time thereafter, Rufus applied for a Workman's Compensation award.

"Sorry," he was told, "but your being laid up is not the result of your employment. Diving into a river to rescue a dog was not part of your job."

"You're wrong," was FRufus's answer. "A night watchman without a dog is like bacon without eggs. He helps make the rounds, and, in truth, is a sniffing co-workers. Consequently, in attempting to rescue Harry, I was performing a duty owed to any fellow employee."

Denied the award, Rufus doggedly took the matter to court. IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you grant a Workman's Compensation award to the dogged night watchman?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that a dog is not considered a fellow worker to a night watchman; that, therefore, Rufus has no duty to dive into the river to rescue Harry, particularly when he should have realized that Harry was in no danger of drowning.

Based upon a 1929 Georgia Supreme Court Decision.

Under Twenty

By KURT LASSEN

He slumped deep in his seat as he watched the rushes of the part of the film made the day before. When the lights came up, he continued to slump deep in his own thoughts. The director, Buzz Kulik, came over to him and asked, "Darren just one day I'm waiting for you to make some comment, show some emotion after you've seen the work."

"I'm just thinking," said Darren quietly and thoughtfully. When we walked back to the studio where 16-year-old Darren would go back to work on his first motionpicture, he was still thoughtful. "I was thinking about that argument scene," he told us. "I thought how I could have played it much stronger, much better."

It is unusual for directors to let their actors see the rushes (yesterday's filming) but Darren, who won a coveted part in "To Find A Man," feels it helps him. "It shows me what I'm doing wrong, mannerisms I may have and maybe how I can do better in the next scene we shoot."

For Darren this is a different side of the footlights from that he's used to. "I work with an amateur theatre group up in Westchester but most of my work is in the production part of it, and that's what interests me most."

"That's what impresses me about this film," He told us. "everything here is so expensive. The money they spend to build the sets, the props, the lights, the crews. Whatever we have to do we have to do with very little money."

Starring opposite beautiful newcomer, Pamela Martin, 17 years old, Darren has no great drive to become an actor. "It's the production side that interests me and I'm sure getting a chance to learn a great deal about it here."

Darren acts as a good friend to Pamela who finds herself in a great deal of trouble. He's lanky, lean, soft-spoken and wears braces. When the two are together, Pamela does most of the talking, and by comparison, Darren was chosen over hundreds of boys for the part, many of them young professionals. Even about this, he doesn't wax very enthusiastic.

"After they kept calling me back and back and finally gave us screen tests in Central Park, I began to feel I was going to get the part and it didn't surprise me very much."

Perhaps part of his "Cool" is due to the fact that his mother is an actress. "She didn't push me into this, although she had heard about them casting for the picture and told me about it and asked me why I didn't go down and give it a try."

Darren's greatest enthusiasm comes from the story itself. It was written by Arnold Schulman who was nominated for the Academy Award for his "Goodbye Columbus." "I think the story is great. It's real and believable about young kids today," Darren told us.

For the film, Darren is made even one year younger - fifteen, and plays the part of a bright, scientific kid from the plush East Side of New York. The day we visited the set, Darren had his time throwing lines at Pamela who was on-camera. As unexcited as Darren may be about himself and the role in which he now finds himself, the screen reveals him as a highly competent actor even though he has never faced a camera before.

Even with his calm manner, one senses that when he says, "I'll learn how to do it better the next time," he's getting more and more involved before the camera. And, who knows if the boy from New Rochelle with the actress-mother won't change his area of interest from painting sets to being on them permanently?

Cholesterol-Used But Not Understood

COLUMBIA — Many Americans are aware that if they eat foods low in cholesterol they may retard the process of hardening of the arteries and reduce their risk of heart attack and stroke. But few know what cholesterol is and what it does. Cholesterol is not all bad. In proper amounts, it is in fact involved in a number of functions vital to body health, says the Missouri Heart Association.

A fat-like chemical substance, cholesterol is found in every living animal cell, says the Missouri Heart Association.

Not all of its roles are clear, but this chemical is known to be essential to the proper architecture of the cell membrane. As such it presumably plays a key role in regulating what gets in and out of the cell. It is also the forerunner of a number of other agents including the sex and adrenal hormones.

Polyunsaturated fats (such as those found in corn oil, cottonseed oil, soybean oil and sunflower oil) tend to decrease cholesterol levels.

Knowing that cholesterol - fatty in feel and pearly in color - is neither all good or all bad, but somewhere in between, should encourage Americans to modify their diets so that intake of cholesterol is kept within due bounds, the Missouri Heart Association concludes.

$5,000 Paid, Nude Photos Go

Two Kidnap Victims Freed Unhurt

ASSOCIATED PRESS — The parents of one paid a $5,000 ransom and the father of the second met a demand for free and unhurt today after removal of four nude photographs from an art gallery. The victims were Michael J. Register, 11, of Macon, Ga., who was held in handcuffs for nearly 20 hours while his parents arranged the ransom, and Richard E. Batey, 13, son of a part-time instructor of the gallery in Memphis, Tenn.

Macon police said most of the $5,000 paid by Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Register was recovered because Michael managed to "appropriate" an identification card from one of his abductors and later led police to the house where he was held.

They arrested John Thomas Plummer, 20, who lives next door to the house, and charged him with kidnapping. Police said other arrests were expected.

In Memphis, the Batey boy was abducted from his home by a bearded gunman at about 8:30 p.m. Thursday and released 2 1/2 hours later after his father went on local television and radio to report that the photos would be taken down.

The gunman had told him the boy would be released if he broadcast such a statement.

There was no immediate arrest in the case.

The photos, part of a show of more than 100 works that went on display at the Memphis Academy of Arts March 1, had been the subject of local controversy for the past week after one resident complained they were obscene.

Police said the gunman entered the home of Dr. Richard C. Batey, a part-time instructor in humanities at the academy and director of the exhibition and ordered the father and two sisters to lie down on the den floor.

In the Macon case, police said young Michael was abducted when he went out to a neighborhood grocery store at 6 p.m. Wednesday. Four hours later his parents received a call demanding the $5,000 ransom.

They obtained a bank loan early Thursday and, according to their instructions, delivered the money to an isolated area along Interstate 75 highway east of the city.

The boy was released in a wooded area where, upon being freed from the handcuffs, he managed to "appropriate" the identification card that had a name and photograph.

He made his way home two hours later.

Jefferson City (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes Thursday signed an emergency bill carrying $14.8 million to keep state programs going until the end of the fiscal year June 30.

It includes an immediate $50 a month pay increase for lower paid merit system employees at state hospitals who had threatened to strike during a long legislative session over the bill.

It also carries money to keep major welfare programs operating at present levels through April, May and June.

The governor made no changes in the bill.

Included is $125,000 for a study to determine the feasibility of building a new carrier airport for the metropolitan St. Louis area. The Federal Aviation Administration has given Missouri six months to present its case before deciding whether the airport should be located in Missouri or Illinois.

An Illinois site has already been tentatively selected.

Sen. Robert A. Young, D-St. Ann, sent the governor a letter today urging that the $125,000 item be vetoed as unnecessary.

He said his committee in aviation and airports is expected to approve in the next few days a bill that would give St. Louis the power of eminent domain to extend the size of the present Lambert-St. Louis Airport. The airport lies in St. Louis County.

"This would, of course," Young wrote, "completely solve the entire problem and situation concerning adequate airport facilities for the St. Louis metropolitan area in the most logical, practical and economic manner."

Vetoing the $125,000 item, he said, would make that money available for other state needs of a higher priority.

The governor, however, signed the bill and left the airport study intact.

Paul Williams, his legal assistant, said that if Young's bill would solve the problem, the $125,000 allotment to the Division of Commerce and Industrial Development could be withheld.

Williams noted, however, that any bill still in committee is already in serious trouble because the calendars of both houses are loaded with bills ready for debate and any bill approved now by committee would have to go to the end of the list.

Peace Talk Boycott Hinted

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Department's mid-day meeting with reporters, chiefly to give the reporters for later use some comments on a global survey of foreign policy which the department will release for Sunday morning publication.

He then responded to half a dozen questions, either declining to discuss issues in detail or restating known positions.

He did disclose he was going to meet with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin. Rogers said that any time some improvement could be made in U.S.-Soviet relations it would be appropriate to do so.

Dobrynin is understood to be planning an imminent return to Moscow for consultation and an impending meeting of the Soviet Communist Party.

Rogers also said under questioning that he thought in his appearance before members of the Senate yesterday he had clarified the U.S. position, particularly on the point of reported pressures on Israel to withdraw from occupied territories before a peace settlement.

Enemy Buildup Noted in DMZ

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnam rushed reinforcements to the northern front today as the allied commands reported a buildup of enemy troops and long-range artillery in the demilitarized zone dividing North and South Vietnam.

The U.S. Command announced 20 American fighterbombers attacked a new North Vietnamese surface-to-air missile site Thursday in the Laotian panhandle, one mile northwest of the DMZ.

Artillery duels were reported across the DMZ, and U.S. military sources said the North Vietnamese had moved long-range artillery into the northern half of the six-mile-wide zone for the first time.

The U.S. Command said enemy activity in the DMZ has increased 50 per cent.

The Saigon government announced that several battalions of fresh troops were flown to the northern front. Lt. Col. Tran Van An, chief spokesman for South Vietnamese military headquarters, said there are now more than 20,000 Saigon troops in Quang Tri, South Vietnam's northernmost province.

Some sources felt it would be impossible for the South Vietnamese to mount a big offensive into the DMZ or into North Vietnam after the heavy losses their forces suffered in Laos.

The U.S. Command said the new SAM site was located by reconnaissance planes in the lower Laotian panhandle one mile west of the North Vietnamese border and one mile northwest of the DMZ.

Asked if the South Vietnamese might make a limited attack into the DMZ in an attempt to neutralize North Vietnamese forces moving in, An replied:

"I cannot say. I never predict what we're doing. I don't know. Wait a few more days."

Crisler was operating a payloador up the side of a levee when the machine hit a hole, causing it to overturn, pinning him beneath the heavy equipment.

He is reported in fair condition today at Missouri Delta Community hospital in Sikeston.

Calley Jury in 10th Day

FT. BENNING, Ga. (AP) — Lt. William Calley's marathon My Lai murder trial jurors showed no sign that their verdict is close when they arrived today for the 10th day of deliberations.

If they have reached no decision by Monday, the trial judge will ask why.

The six officers on the jury indicated they are still charting the course that Calley's platoon took through the Vietnamese village on a fateful morning three years ago.

There has been criticism by the defense that the jury men are winning and dining when they ought to be deliberating. It is unlikely, however, that the criticism reached the jury.

Judge Reid Kennedy said Thursday he will ask a progress report if no verdict is reached after this weekend.

22 caliber pistol at him. Coleman was treated at the Missouri Delta Community hospital, Sikeston, and then placed in the Sikeston jail, where he is being held for Stoddard county authorities on investigation of murder charges.

Shelly was pronounced dead at the scene by Stoddard County Coroner Ray Rainey.

Hanoi Seems Cool to Cambodian Conquest

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP)—North Vietnam, whose troops have been roaming northeast Cambodia almost at will, do not seem interested at the moment in conquering all of this war-torn country.

Hanoi's defense minister, Vo Nguyen Giap, is believed holding to his longtime view of Cambodia as a supply corridor and rear base area where his men can store ammunition, build hospitals, rear headquarters and bivouacs.

Available evidence indicates that Giap is mainly concerned about any threat to his lines of communication.

Most of Hanoi's sanctuary areas, set up since last spring when U.S. and South Vietnamese troops blasted its bases along the Cambodian border, are in the eastern and northeastern parts of the country.

Most of the 45,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong soldiers now in Cambodia are poised to parry any attempt to disrupt the flow of supplies from Community Command depots to battlefields in South Vietnam.

Hanoi might find itself trapped between the forces of Cambodia and South Vietnam while substantial numbers of U.S. troops remain in South Vietnam to help protect that country.

Capturing Phnom Penh, a city of almost two million people, would require Hanoi to govern a population thoroughly hostile to all Vietnamese, North or South.

The North Vietnamese have had little success so far in winning Cambodia's Khmers over to their side. Most of the estimated "Red Khmers" who are fighting on Hanoi's side, are illiterate peasants, ill-suited to the task of administration.

Also, a quick over-all victory in Cambodia would almost certainly force the winners to restore Cambodia's ousted chief of state, Prince Norodom Sihanouk whose name is rarely mentioned in Communist propaganda in this country.

In view of all these factors, it is generally believed that the Communist Command strategy is concentrating on preemptive strikes to prevent Cambodia from gaining enough strength to pose a threat to Hanoi's activities on its soil.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

If you have kept a secret, the time will always come when you will be proud of yourself.

JAIL DESERVED

There are times when it is sad to see someone go to prison. On the other hand, there are those who deserve to go to jail. Such as, for example, the Los Angeles 31-year-old Hippie character who thought it might be "fun" to spike potato chips with LSD, and then serve them to guests at a large party.

Within fifteen minutes, the 50 victims began to experience what was described as a "hallucinogenic nightmare." Before it was over, eight of them were in such danger that it was necessary to rush them to a hospital. Fortunately, they lived.

The others all testified, later and in court, that they suffered "horrible effects." One could not speak, or hear, and everything became grotesquely deformed. Brilliant colors flashing all around was the last thing remembered before passing out.

Another complained of a lightheaded feeling, had trouble breathing, saw buildings sway, had chills, heard echoing sounds and was sure that death was near. A third thought that the sheriff's deputies attempting to rescue him were robots out to harm him.

Playing practical jokes is one thing. Poisoning someone with a chemical as dangerous as LSD is something else. Certainly the record of deaths, of violent suicides and of long-lasting mental and emotional disturbances caused by "acid" is well known. The Federal Bureau of Narcotics has warned that LSD is one of the two most dangerous drugs known — the other being heroin. LSD is so powerful that a single teaspoonful can "blow the minds" of over 1,000 people. A speck no larger than the point of a pin will take a user on a "trip" from 8 to 16 hours.

Fortunately, the Superior Court judge who heard the case sentenced the "prankster" to a term of six years to life in prison. We hope that the case will serve as an example and a warning to others who might be inclined to pull such a thoughtless trick.

Edward Eakers says, Marriage is like a railroad sign -- you see a lovely girl, you stop, you look -- after you are married you listen.

FIGURING OUT THE ECONOMY

Despite the almost inevitable pratfalls that come with trying to forecast the future, the reputation of private economic consultants remains high in the corporate world. Businessmen gaze in dismay at official government forecasts based less on sound economics than on wishful thinking. The "self-fulfilling prophecy" GNP estimates put out by President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisers, for example, simply don't provide a firm basis for sound planning.

Partly in reaction, registration for a one-day "Janeway Seminar" in New York City (N.Y. Athletic Club) on Wednesday, March 31, already has reached the limit of 100 participants. To hear Eliot Janeway tell businessmen "where they stand," companies must fork over $250 each (plus $100 for each additional participant). At lunchtime, those attending will get to hear Harrison Salisbury of the New York Times audit the world situation.

Janeway has been taking his lumps of late with gloomy stock market predictions. Although his earlier pessimism was vindicated by the market in 1969 and early 1970, he continued to cry bear as stocks moved up 40 per cent from their Penn Central lows. He sees the present market as badly overbought and, in his typical elliptical style, cautions: "The probabilities favor losses on any cruise of the Titanic."

Sometimes it appears that the private and government economists are working not only from different perspectives but from different worlds. The Commerce Department, for example, predicted early in March that the dollar value of new capital outlays in 1971 would rise 4.3 per cent from 1970. A week earlier, a survey by Rinfret-Boston Associates, an outfit headed by flamboyant Pierre Rinfret, forecast a strong gain of 11 per cent in capital outlays for new plants and equipment this year. Trying to outguess the volatile and paradoxical U.S. economy is no mean feat. Even the private economists admits it calls for a little extrasensory perception and a lot of luck.

An unhappy diplomat has a Japanese country house, a Chinese salary, and an American wife.

IN WHAT COUNTRY WOULD YOU RATHER LIVE?

Of course America isn't perfect, but neither is Cuba nor any Socialist or Communist country. But at least America is working on it. And don't forget that millions in those other countries (who know conditions there, better than you do) want desperately to come here, from there.

Since a country is simply the people in it, what have you done lately to make yours a better one? Or, what are you doing to make it worse?

With all the isms, cults and organized protesters, there are really only two groups of people in the world -- happy and unhappy. The happy ones are so busy working, earning their own way, producing their share for the world's needs, that they haven't time to join the rioters. The unhappy ones are so busy screaming for their "rights", trying to be noticed, demanding somebody else take care of them, that they haven't time to join the self-respecting workers.

SOCIAL SECURITY CALLED WELFARE?

It has been called to our attention that upon reaching retirement age, oldsters are now being conditioned to understand that the Social Security benefits which they receive are regarded as welfare payments and not a return of taxes paid by them into the Social Security fund.

In support of the "welfare posture," has been the long standing limitation on the earnings of a Social Security beneficiary known as the retirement test. This is the provision of the law which limits the amount a person may earn who is receiving Social Security entitlement payments. The limitation has the effect of keeping the beneficiary on an income somewhat below that amount what the Department of Health, Education has regarded as the "poverty level."

So it is understandable that wage earners who have paid social security taxes on a mandatory basis for 30 years or more, with the knowledge that their employers were required to contribute a like amount, resent the present official attitude that upon retirement they are on welfare. The majority of potential retirement beneficiaries have believed that they had acquired a vested interest in a "fund" through their tax payments over the years.

The leg-iron of retirement test which limits earnings that may be received by the person who has retired is justified by the new welfare concept.

But no such test is applied to government employees who retire on a pension. For them there is no limitation on earnings.

So it is no wonder, in these circumstances, the wage earner and employer alike are not inclined to view the added burden of Social Security taxes with any more affection than they must confront all other increases in taxes.

The survival of the inequities of the Social Security system is an example of the extent to which members of Congress become captives of the administrative agencies and bureaucrats.

It is time for a change in the thinking in Washington and that means talking to our representatives in Congress.

Ben Franklin said it: "A house without woman and firelight, is like a body without soul or spirit."

For the record, everyone should be made aware of just what happened to the railroads during inflationary 1969. Despite record revenues, earnings on the nation's railroads last year fell to the lowest level since 1961. Net railway operating income fell 3.5 per cent -- to $659 million from the $683 million reported in 1968. This meant a rate of return on net investment of only 2.38 percent, down from 2.46 in 1968. Twenty - one of the nation's 74 Class I railroads rang up deficits for the year 1969. Some industries are in a position somewhat similar to these. NEW YORK (AP) — Just how sane are you?

Are you that one out of every 10 who will spend some part of his life in a mental institution, or are you among those three out of four who on some days think it would be restful to be in one?

Before you start paying $60 an hour to have a mental massage by an expert, you might make a preliminary estimate of your normalcy quotient. Simply answer the following question: complied by the poor man's psychiatrist:

When you try to overhear what people are saying about you, do you feel let down when you discover that they usually are talking about something else?

Does it embarrass you if someone at the office asks you, "Isn't that the same shirt you wore to work yesterday?"

If you can stick to a diet, do you like to brag about it? If you can't stick to a diet, do you still like to brag about it?

If you drop a piece of breakfast toast to the floor, do you have a conviction that nine out of 10 times it will land with the buttered side down?

Admittedly, your boss isn't the most talented guy in the office, but if you had a choice, wouldn't you rather simply have his salary than his title or his duties?

As you get older, are you oppressed by the feeling that each U.S. Congress does less than the one before?

If you were browsing alone in a bookstore and no clerk was looking, wouldn't you sneak a peak at an illustrated sex book rather than an illustrated copy of "Alice in Wonderland"?

Whenever you write a check to pay your life insurance premium, do you invariably feel a bit melancholy and say to your wife, "I'm worth more dead than alive?"

Every once in a while, even in the midst of a denunciation of modern teen-agers because they're "getting away with murder," don't you have a grudging envy of their independent attitude and wish you had more of it yourself?

Have you written a loveletter in the last 10 years to someone you shouldn't—and then torn it up unmailly?

Those are the questions. Now to your score. If you answered 'yes' to each of them, you are as sane as your neighbors.

But, in this kind of world, is that enough?

DECEPTIVELY SIMPLE
Politicians have made an attractive political issue out of generic versus brand name drugs by holding up the tempting bait that one drug is as good as another, as long as they contain the same chemical ingredients.

Superficially, a case can be made that generic drugs are often cheaper. Leaving out the question of price, are drugs with the same chemical make-up always equivalent? In other words, do they do as good a job at all times? Dr. Alfred Gilman, co-editor of "The Pharmacological Basis of Therapeutics," believes not. He says, "I am appalled by many of those statements which imply that generic drugs, marketed cheaply ... are the equivalent of established trademarks."

Chemical analysis indicates that the preparation actually contains the specified amount of the drug.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON -- James Ott, Jr., to the investigation. The 76-year-old FBI chief is sore at us for using some of his own techniques to find out where we get our information.

The bloodhounds are now loose again, searching up and down Pentagon corridors for our trail, growling menacingly at anyone who might have been seen talking to us.

The brass hats want to know how we found out that Air Force rainmakers have been seeding the clouds over the Ho Chi Minh trail network during the wet seasons.

This novel attempt to produce cloudbursts to wash out the trails, we reported, was known by the secret code name "Intermediary - Compatriot." Only a few insiders were supposed to know that, and the brass would dearly like to find out who blabbed.

There is also outrage on the Pentagon's outer "E" ring, which the top brass inhabit, over our story about the contingency plans to bomb North Vietnam.

We reported that the plans, transmitted to the Pentagon last October 17 and kept constantly up to date, include the bombing and mining of Haiphong harbor.

It was our mention of the exact date that seemed to upset some generals the most.

Again last December, we told how the bosses of the armed forces radio-TV publications empire sang songs, cracked bathroom jokes and roared with laughter as they decided whom to fire at Christmas time. The brass called an urgent meeting of employees to assure them our allegation were "false" and "malicious."

We offered, therefore, to play tapes of the secret proceedings and let the employees listen to the hilarity for themselves. Thereupon, Assistant Defense Secretary Roger Kelley gave up trying to deny the story and ordered an investigation instead to discover where we got the tapes.

He has now called in the FBI whose director, J. Edgar Hoover, happily assigned agents Leslie Chisholm, William Crowder and waivers are good for only three months at which time they must be renewed, causing more red tape and paperwork.

The disease is caused by close-cropped beard hairs kinking and digging into the skin. If the beard hair is allowed to grow, the hairs extend and dislodge from the skin.

One Air Force doctor, Willard Steck, thinks an airman prone to pseudofolliculitis should shave lightly with a double-edge razor. The soldier will still have a slight stubble after shaving, according to the doctor, but his "commander will have to accept this."

—SCHOOL CRUSADE—
The once fuddy-duddy National Education Association is preparing a scathing attack on the federal budget crew for spending $10,000 to train and equip each soldier, but only $839 per student.

The NEA, headed by a tough former Nashville school man, Helen Bain, has been quietly producing tapes for shipment to 6,000 radio stations. These will outrage some of the nation's 2.3 million teachers.

A typical tape, obtained by us, opens with the sneering voice of a White House budget maker: "... one C-5A transport $47 million ..."

A second voice asks: "What uh ... What are you doing?"
Voice 1: "Figuring out the federal budget. Who are you?"
Voice 2: "Just a taxpayer."

Voice 1: "All right. Let's see ... where was I? Total military budget -- 67 billion, aid to public schools about 4 and 6/10th billion ..."

Voice 2: "Wait a minute. You're spending 14 times more for the military than for education. Isn't somebody gonna get wise?"

Voice 1: "Not on that kinda money, they're not."

Mrs. Bain, an attractive blond, has told intimates that the traditional schoolteachers' hat-in-hand approach to the White House has brought school kids little more than shabby schools and coverless books.

Meanwhile the Pentagon has been wallowing in wasteful projects.

out there are, in fact, many factors besides chemical contents which affect the action of a drug. A refrigerator or an automobile may contain a specified number of parts, but his does not mean all automobiles and all refrigerators are manufactured with the same care and are therefore of the same quality -- and so it is with drugs. But, use of an inferior drug may mean the difference between life and death.

CALIFORNIA WOMAN BELIEVES IN RAIL ADVERTISING THEME
Mrs. Theresa Riservato of Glendale, Calif., is a true believer in the railroads' current advertising theme: "America's Railroads. Who Needs Them? You Do. We All Do."

The Union Pacific explains it this way:
Mrs. Riservato and four children were lost in their car on a lonely road in the Devil's Playground area of the Mojave Desert, about 50 miles east of Barstow, Calif.

She drove alongside the UP's main line for about 30 miles until she came to a crossing, where there was a telephone.

Chief Dispatcher James Hulihan, 200 miles away in Los Angeles, told Mrs. Riservato not to worry -- help was on the way.

A UP freight train soon stopped, and the crew provided the stranded group with food, water, flares and matches for a fire. The San Bernardino County sheriff's rescue squad -- notified by Mr. Hulihan -- arrived shortly thereafter and led Mrs. Riservato and the children out of the desert.

entireties of the voting intellectuals bid for Alliance: Launches own campaign to oust Nixon

WASHINGTON -- There is a tempest in the midnight martini set here over an old letter which a big man on campus, Harvard's 6-foot-8 Professor John Kenneth Galbraith, dispatched from England last fall to the most skilled curmudgeon of all, labor chief George Meany.

This manicured missive arrived last November shortly after the 1970 elections. And so complimentary was it that it startled insiders since Prof. Galbraith and his Americans for Democratic Action (ADA), now penniless, hopeless and baseless, appeared always to confuse anti-communism with antediluvianism. Galbraith, an economics professor and a founder and former national ADA chairman, is, after all, a Fabian Socialist, who at 62 is vituperatively critical of those labor chiefs who don't agree with his brand of socio-economics. And Mr. Meany is the world's No. 1 hard hat.

Prof. Galbraith long has believed in recognizing Maoist China, dumping the anti-Communist Taiwan government. The former U.S. ambassador has been outspokenly, searingly critical of President Nixon's and former President Johnson's foreign policies and he fought many of the men backed by labor in the '70 congressional elections. Also, inside labor, the Galbraith-ADA bloc is held responsible for the defeat of Hubert Humphrey in 1968.

Why then should Prof. Galbraith write, all the way from Cambridge University in England, to the man he has scorched so often politically? Why would Prof. Galbraith, devotee of former Sen. Eugene McCarthy, write to the pragmatic cigar-chomping Meany that while there may be some doubt that Mr. Galbraith is the leader of academe, there is no doubt that Mr. Meany is the leader of American labor? And why write with such heavy praise of Mr. Meany swinging the AFL-CIO towards the economic issues in the 1970 campaign, which brought so many Democrats into office? Why seek a conference with a self-educated ex-plumber?

The answer is that Prof. Galbraith knows they do have one thing in common -- the unmaking of a president.

That is, pushing Richard Nixon into history as a one-term president.

But that's not enough for the labor movement. Or at least for the AFL-CIO leadership. Mr. Meany is not very enthusiastic about seeing Prof. Galbraith. The professor needs a base of power. Mr. Meany has a powerful team.

There is some significance in Prof. Galbraith's short, one-page letter. Inherent in it is the recognition that middle America has rejected the intellectual. It is hard hats, they've read what in a dialectic sense an indirect he's said about them. They've admitted that Vice President Spiro Agnew gauged the dig him now, too.

But it will take a lot of wooing. Prof. Galbraith and the company will be surprised at the literacy of the heads under the wheel has turned all the way. The hard hats are demonstrating against President Nixon because he smote them a bit. And the leader of left-wing academe, Prof. John Kenneth Galbraith, is wooing the hard hats.

In Defense of Women

by H.L. Mencken

THE ETERNAL ROMANCE

But whatever the future of monogamous marriage, there will never be any decay of that agreeable adventurousness which now lies at the bottom of all transactions between the sexes. Women may emancipate themselves, they may borrow the whole bag of masculine tricks, and they may cure themselves of their present desire for the vegetable security of marriage, but they will never cease to be women, and so long as they are women they will remain provocative to men. Their chief charm today lies precisely in the fact that they are dangerous, that they threaten masculine liberty and autonomy, that their sharp minds present a menace vastly greater than that of acts of God and the public enemy — and they will be dangerous for ever. Men fear them, and are fascinated by them. They know how to show their teeth charmingly; the more enlightened of them have perfected a superb technique of fascination. It was a Nietzsche who called them the recreation of the warrior — not of the poltroon, remember, but of the warrior. A profound saying. They have an infinite capacity for rewarding masculine industry and enterprise with small and irresistible flatteries; their acute understanding combines with their capacity for evoking ideas of beauty to make them incomparable companions when the serious business of the day is done, and the time has come to expand comfortably in the interstellar ether.

Every man, I daresay, has his own notion of what constitutes perfect peace and contentment, but all of those notions, despite the fundamental conflict of the sexes, revolve around women. As for me — and I hope I may be pardoned, at this late stage in my inquiry, for intruding my own personality — I reject the two commonest of them: passion, at least in its more adventurous and melodramatic aspects, is too exciting and alarming for so indolent a man, and I am too egoistic to have much desire to be mothered. What, then, remains for me? Let me try to describe it to you.

It is the close of a busy and vexatious day — say half past five or six o'clock of a winter afternoon. I have had a cocktail or two, and am stretched out on a divan in front of a fire, smoking. At the edge of the divan, close enough for me to reach with my hand, sits a woman not too young, but still goodlooking and well-dressed — above all, a woman with a soft, low-pitched, agreeable voice. As I snooze she talks — of anything, everything, all the things that women talk of: books, music, the play, men, other women. No politics. No business. No religion. No metaphysics. Nothing challenging and vexatious — but remember, she is intelligent; what she says is clearly expressed, and often picturesquely. I observe the fine sheen of her hair, the pretty cut of her frock, the glint of her white teeth, the arch of her eye-brow, the graceful curve of her arm. I listen to the exquisite murmur of her voice. Gradually I fall asleep — but only for an instant. At once, observing it, she raises her voice ever so little, and I am awake. Then to sleep again — slowly and charmingly down that slippery hill of dreams. And then awake again, and then asleep again, and so on.

I ask you seriously: could anything be more unutterably beautiful? The sensation of falling asleep is to me the most exquisite in the world I delight in it so much that I even look forward to death itself with a sneaking wonder and desire. Well, here is sleep poetized and made doubly sweet. Here is sleep set to the finest music in the world. I match this situation against any that you can think of. It is not only enchanting; it is also, in a very true sense, ennobling. In the end, when the girl grows prettily miffed and throws me out, I return to my sorrows somehow purged and glorified. I am a better man in my own sight. I have grazed upon the fields of asphodel. I have been genuinely, completely and unregrettably happy.

After Marriage 25 in Family

ONAGA, Kan. (AP) — When Patricia Ebert of Onaga marries David Hund of Paxico, Kan., May 3, there will be 25 members in their family, and 22 of them will be living at home.

Mrs. Ebert, whose husband was killed in an automobile accident in 1963, has 12 children. Hund, whose wife died of cancer last year, has 11. The children range in age from two to 22.

The biggest is Hund's son Tim, a 6-foot-11 basketball player at Wamego, Kan., High School. The couple hopes all 23 children will attend the wedding. Mrs. Ebert has two sons in military service overseas and a daughter, Barbara Turner, lives in Waverly, Tenn.

Hund has 80 milk cows and 40,000 chickens on his farm and he is enlarging his nine-room house by two bedrooms and another bath.

And transportation shouldn't be a problem. Hund has eight licensed vehicles including a school bus he has refitted for camping.

Mrs. Ebert says the kids get along well and have ordered their first breakfast together. She says she will have to fry at least 40 eggs to fill the orders, along with lots of doughnuts and corn meal mush.

"After my wife passed away, I got awfully lonesome," said Hund. Then he said the Rev. Tom Kearns of Sacred Heart Roman Catholic church in Paxico came to visit and "told me 'you have to get out and meet people; you can't just sit here. I know someone who would be good company.' That's how this thing got started."

The someone Father Kearns introduced him to last October was Mrs. Ebert. They became engaged early this year.

Ann Landers

Warts can be "Wished" Away

Dear Ann Landers: I'd like to get my hands on that snob who wrote the obnoxious letter saying she had no use for foreign women.

The writer made a point that every foreign woman she knows has a story about how rich she was over there. Everybody's father owned a factory or a bank. She criticized the way we hold the fork in the left hand and push food with the knife.

I wish the writer of that letter could live in Poland for a few years. She wouldn't be so concerned with silverware. She would then understand why so many people want to come to America. Someone should remind her that her ancestors also came here from a foreign country — unless she is an American Indian. Furthermore, 800 million people in the world don't use forks at all. They use chopsticks. Does that mean they are ignorant? Put her in her place, Ann. —Disgusted.

Dear Dis: It isn't necessary. You did — and I thank you.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a mature 20-year-old who is in love with a 25-year-old man. My problem consists mainly of the past — both mine and his. I was going with a fellow my parents thought the world of, even though he was spoiled and childish. We fought most of the time. I decided we could never have a good life together so I dropped him.

Now I have met someone I adore. We get along famously and he is the man I want to marry. My ex-boyfriend heard about it and is furious. Two weeks ago he wrote my parents a long letter telling them how much he loves me and how we could make a go of it if I gave him another chance.

My folks won't get of my back. They are on me night and day to try again with the old boyfriend. I don't want to see him, Ann. I've found what I want. My folks don't like my choice because he has been divorced. I know all about the divorce and the reasons for it. It will not affect our marriage. Are my parents being unfair or am I due for a rude awakening?

—Fractionated

Dear Frac: Your discarded Romeo had no business writing to your parents. He sounds like a loser to me.

As for the current candidate I don't know whether he's the one for you or not. Surely because a man has had a marriage failure does not mean he should be forever banished from the human race. But 20 is pretty young. Why don't you give it another year and see? If you still feel this way on your 21st birthday, you've got the green light from me.

Dear Ann Landers: Do you believe in magic cures? Well, I didn't either until this weird thing happened to me. I've told a few people and they don't think I am telling the truth. If it isn't magic please help me understand what it is. I had two ugly warts on my hand. I was so ashamed of them that I always kept my hand behind me. I tried all kinds of wart removers but nothing worked. One day my aunt told me how she got rid of her warts when she was a little girl. She said, "Tie four knots in a string and bury it in the ground. Within two weeks your warts will disappear." I decided I had nothing to lose, so I did it. On the tenth day the warts were gone. If this isn't magic, what is it? —Buffalo Reader

Dear Buff: There's a logical explanation and here it is: Warts are caused by a virus. What is needed to rid one's self of warts is an immune reaction which is strong enough to overcome the virus. A strong belief in the cure can sometime produce this immunology. So you see, a person can actually "wish" his warts away. And you proved it. Alcohol is no shortcut to social success. If you think you have to drink to be accepted by your friends, get the facts. Read "Booze And You — For Teen-Agers Only," by Ann Landers. Years of Basketball Experience

20 YEARS TO THE TOP FOR TROTTERS' HUBERT AUSBIE

It is unfortunate that 'overnight' success takes years, as in the case of Hubert (Geese) Ausbie of the Harlem Globetrotters.

It would make a nice story for a kid out of college to be playing for the Magicians of Basketball when the star sprained his ankle, the rookie steps in and becomes a hero. Makes a good story but usually not the way it happens.

In most cases, it takes years of hard work, determination and self - sacrifice and it was no different for Ausbie, 6-5 comic who'll be with the Trotters at Siketon high fieldhouse on April 5th.

"Geese" Ausbie began playing basketball in grade school in Crescent, Oklahoma. He blossomed into one of the top athletes in the Sooner state, setting scoring records that have yet to be broken.

He had a sensational career at Douglas High in Crescent before continuing his development at Philander Smith College in Little Rock, where he aroused interest as a cager who could score well.

After graduation, Ausbie signed a Globetrotter contract. He was good enough to make the squad -- no more, no less. It has taken him four years on the sand - lots, three years of prep action, four years of college play and nine years of Trotter ball to become an 'overnight' success.

The gangling, 32-year old Ausbie now shares top billing with Bob (Showboat) Hall, a 21-year veteran. Ausbie combines his unique comedy with topflight basketball. He's a third generation Globetrotter refining the art of clowning on the hardwood.

Like other 'overnight' successes, "Geese" Ausbie has been paying his dues -- every day for the past 20 years.

TROTTERS' HALL POUND 'FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH'; PLAYING 22ND SEASON

Ponce deLeon searched in vain for the "Fountain of Youth" but the Harlem Globetrotters have a man who found it. The man is Bob "Showboat" Hall, world - renowned court jester.

Hall is playing his 22nd season, a club record, and is one of the greatest ball handlers and finest showmen the sport has ever produced.

The 6-2, 190 - pound star is a graduate of Miller High School in his native Detroit and received his "graduate work" in basketball at Brewster Center, a well known training ground for athletes in the Motor City, a spot which has produced a number of topnotch Globetrotters over the years.

The durable dandy has played an estimated 4,500 games for the fancy court magicians, without a question a record for the sport.

Hall is a favorite in all of the 87 countries around the world where the antics and clever play of the Globetrotters have been witnessed.

In addition to his ability as a comedian and ball handler, Hall is an outstanding leader.

"He's been a fine teacher and great influence with young players," said general manager George Gillett. "He's one of the most dedicated men I've known in sports."

TINY TROTTER ROBERTSON MASTER DRIBBLER, COMIC

Robertson is a tiny Trotter 5-7, and the finest young basketball talent to come out of New York City's Harlem via Loyola University of Chicago.

He is a premier dribbler with the most famous basketball quintet the world has ever known, his passing ability is flawless and he shoots with a deadly accuracy.

To be a Globetrotter takes an added talent ... fun is the added dimension and Pablo in his fourth season with the "Magicians of Basketball" brings more than his share of the comedy to each game. Originally, it was not in the cards for him to assume any comedy roles, but natural flair won in the end. Pablo Robertson is a court jester as well as a show dribbler ... A bag of dynamite who explodes to the delight of the fans.

Bruins Seek 5th Straight

HOUSTON (AP) — Jack Kraft believes his scrappy Villanova Wildcats are ready for the game of their lives against defending NCAA national basketball champion UCLA Saturday, but he isn't so sure about himself.

Drained but smiling after Thursday night's nerve-jangling 92-89 double overtime victory over Western Kentucky in the semifinals, the Wildcat coach said "I know my players will make it ... I'm just worried about myself."

UCLA's poised Bruins placed themselves in position for an unprecedented fifth consecutive NCAA title with a 68-60 victory over Kansas in the second semifinal as a record 31,428 fans looked on in the Astrodome.

The gray-haired Kraft, who suits up only nine players and seldom plays more than six, said his Pennsylvania "Iron Men" are "a bunch of fine physical specimens. They are durable and they'll be ready for Saturday."

Forward Howard Porter and center Hank Siemiontkowski shared heroics for the slightly favored Wildcats.

Siemiontkowski, a 6-foot-7, 230-pound junior scored 31 points before he fouled out with four seconds remaining in regulation play. The foul could have given him the goat's role, but Western Kentucky's Jerry Dunn blew the shot on a one-and-one situation to send the game into overtime 74-44.

Porter hit a baseline jumper with 11 seconds remaining to send the game into double overtime 87-44. The 6-foot-8 senior blocked two shots in the double overtime and his bucket gave Villanova the lead to stay at 89-87.

UCLA coach John Wooden, who has 27 consecutive NCAA playoff victories to his credit, unleashed All-America 6-foot-8 forward Sidney Wicks one-on-one against Kansas' 6-foot-10 Dave Robisch in the battle of full court presses.

Wicks brought the ball up court and set up the Bruin offense.

Wicks scored 21 points and guard Henry Bibby added 18 from the outside.

Robisch has held to 17 points by the swarming UCLA press.

GeorgiaTechFaces North Carolina

NEW YORK (AP) — Paul Hoffman stood in the runway under the stands at Madison Square Garden and sighed.

"Well, listen," the St. Bonaventure junior said, "there's always another game, another season. And it was just another foul shot."

Only minutes before, the 6-foot-1 guard from Hazelton, Pa., had stood at the foul line, preparing to eliminate Georgia Tech from the National Invitational Tournament and propel the Bonnies into Saturday's championship against rugged North Carolina.

But it never happened. His first shot whipped around the rim and out. The second one barely touched the iron and, though Hoffman didn't know it at the moment, the Bonnies were on their way to losing the double-overtime game 76-71 before 18,812 frenzied fans Thursday night.

North Carolina had a much easier time of it against Atlantic Coast Conference rival Duke, belting the Blue Devils 73-67 in the first of the two semifinals.

Duke will face St. Bonaventure in the consolation game preceding the nationally televised 1 p.m., EST, championship contest.

After a 67-67 tie, Jim Thorne's basket on a goaltending call and two foul shot apiece by Tommy Wilson and Bob Murphy put the coached home. Thorne finished with a game-high 27 points. Carl Jackson had 18 to top the Bonnies.

Tech Coach John "Whack" Hyder said he was surprised his Engineers were able to keep up with the usually hardrunning Bonnies. And he acknowledged that, for a while, it seemed neither team really wanted to win.

He recalled losing to St. Bonaventure by a slim 70-68 last Dec. 29 in the Gator Bowl tournament and, after the game, kidding with Bonnies' Coach Larry Weise about having a rematch.

"I guess neither of us really believed we'd get it but, boy we sure did," Hyder grinned.

Then someone asked whether he'd joked similarly with North Carolina Coach Dean Smith after the Tar Heels walloped Tech 87-58 earlier this year.

"Well ... "Hyder stalled, "you see, some coaches are I guess you could say more intense about the game than others—even when they win by 29 points. There are some you can kid with and some you can't. I guess I won't have much to say to Dean."

Smith didn't have much to say about the Tar Heels' opening-game victory against the Blue Devils.

One Run Game Highlights Exhibitions

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The major league teams must be getting in shape for the opening of the regular baseball season April 5. Or, at least, they're working at not scoring more runs than necessary.

There were six preseason games Thursday decided by one run with three ending in 2-1 scores.

Of course, some teams aren't in shape like Cincinnati and Cleveland. The Reds belted Los Angeles 10-5 with 18 hits; the Indians got 20 hits in dispatching the Milwaukee Brewers 13-8.

In other games San Diego edged San Francisco 2-1; the Chicago White Sox

nipped Minnesota 2-1; Philadelphia clipped Houston 2-1; Pittsburgh defeated Detroit 3-2; Atlanta downed Washington 8-7; California took Oakland 7-6; Boston beat St. Louis 6-2; and the New York Yankees topped the New York Mets 4-2.

Tommy Helms and Woody Woodward slammed home runs for Cincinnati as the Reds got 13 and seven runs hits off Los Angeles' Bill Singer. Helms, lee May and Bernie Carbo each got three hits.

Richie Allen of the Dodgers also got a hit—on the head. He was injured before the game when he ran into a palm tree while chasing fly balls. The team doctor reported Allen had a mild concussion and some severe contusions. He is expected to be out a week.

Eddie Leon got four hits, including a home run and a double, Ray Fosse homered and Ted Ford and Buddy Bradford got three hits with two doubles each in the Cleveland victory over Milwaukee.

Ed Spiezio, playing for the first time since ending his holdout six days ago, blasted a home run in the 10th inning for San Diego's victory.

Walt Williams, Rick Reichardt and Bill Melton strung singles together in the 10th inning for Chicago's slim victory over Washington.

Wood Fryman pitched eight innings for

Philadelphia. He got the victory when Terry Harmon doubled and Willie Montanez tripled in the eighth off Houston's George Culver.

Gene Clines' triple drove in two runs in the sixth for the Pittsburgh margin of victory. Al Oliver homered for the Pirates' other run.

Pinch-hitter Hal King hit a two-run homer in the ninth inning for Atlanta's triumph over Washington. Earl Williams also homered for the Braves and Joe Foy and Ed Stroud each hit their third of the spring for the Senators.

Alex Johnson, fined recently for lack of hustle, showed a lot of it as he bolted home with the winning score for California when Oakland second baseman John Donaldson dropped a relay from the outfield.

Jim Fregosi homered for the Angels while Reggie Jackson, Rick Monday and Gene Tenace hit circuit shots for the Athletics.

Boston jumped on St. Louis pitcher Jerry Reuss for five runs in the eighth inning. The big belt for Boston was a basesloaded single by Rico Petrocelli. George Scott homered for the Red Sox.

Mel Stottlemire and Stan Bahnsen of the Yankees held the Mets to four hits. The Yanks scored twice in the first and in the fifth off Jerry Kossman, who became the first Met to work seven innings in an exhibition game.

Remember... newly planted trees and shrubs reach upward and outward an amazing distance as they grow!

When planting trees and shrubs near a utility line, it pays to make sure they won't interfere with electric or telephone service when they mature. For safety's sake, observe these minimum planting distances from utility lines:

10 ft. for shrubs maturing to 15 ft. high
20 ft. for trees that will grow to 25 ft. high
30 ft. for trees that will grow to 40 ft. high

If you plant closer than these minimums, trees and shrubs may require severe pruning, destroying their natural beauty.

Allen Loved By Mates

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Beloved Richie Allen?

Yep the volatile slugger and oft-boomed outfielder has become a well-liked player by his new teammates of 1971, the Los Angeles Dodgers, and even more so when the palm of fate strikes him down.

Thursday it was a simple palm of tree, however. Allen, running full tilt for a fly ball during outfield practice, crashed head on with the large tree which is on the playing field at Vero Beach's Holman Stadium. In seconds, the entire Dodger squad was around the fallen Allen, who hadn't lost consciousness.

An examination showed no broken bones but injuries to the head, neck, right shoulder and wrist included numerous cuts and, for precautionary reasons, Allen was ordered to spend 24 hours in a hospital bed at Dodgertown.

Twelve palm trees, three light towers and a scoreboard dot the outfield at the Dodger spring training site but over the years, even with guys like the blithesome Pete Reiser on the Dodger team, no player ever was hurt running into them.

Willie Davis, the first man over to Allen's side Thursday, said it was "ridiculous" to have such things on a playing field.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Games at Washington Aug. 21 and Cincinnati Aug. 28 complete the St. Louis Cardinals 1971 exhibition football schedule, the National Football League team announced today.

The Cardinals open exhibition play at home Aug. 14 against Houston in the annual Cardinal Glennon Memorial Hospital benefit game. The other home game will be Sept. 10 against Cleveland.

On Sept. 4 the Cardinals meet the Chiefs in Kansas City in the fifth Governor's Cup battle.

Cards Bullpen Falters

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Kansas City's Dick Drago has been nominated as the Royals' opening day - of - the - season pitcher following his four-hit, seven - inning performance Thursday against Minnesota. The Royals won 6-3.

The righthander was touched for only one unearned run.

St. Louis, meanwhile, also got a strong four-hit performance out of Jerry Reuss for seven innings against the Boston Red Sox. However, the bullpen help couldn't protect a 2-1 lead and Boston shelled the Cards, 6-2.

Kansas City is idle today. Manager Bob Lemon continues to mull over plans for April 3, the deadline for trimming seven more players from the roster.

Lemon said "I'm not sure whether we'll break camp with 10 or 11 pitchers. It all depends on (Wally) Bunker. If his arm still is tender, we'll take 11. If he's o.k., we'll take 10."

Lemon said he's thinking in terms of a five-man starting rotation all season.

Moe Drabowsky took the Red Sox shelling. After striking out the first Boston batter he faced, he was raked for four hits and five runs.

Rookie Luis Melendez homered for the first St. Louis run and Jim Beachamp's single and Julian Javier's bloop double accounted for the other.

Mike Torrez will start for St. Louis today in a game against the Chicago White Sox at Sarasota.

WITNESSING WITH COMPASSION

Witnessing with compassion is the dream of every growing Christian. But usually dreams are not realized by those who spend their time building air castles. Behind every dream come true, we find determination, discipline, and even drudgery sometimes.

Witnessing with much compassion is better than witnessing with little or none at all, but we may have to do some of the latter before we realize the blessings of the former. Study books which tell us we must go with a broken heart to be an effective soulwinner could be putting a hamstring on God's outreach. Crawling comes before walking, and walking takes a lot of falls before the practice is mastered.

Compassion is a divine attribute imparted to believers for their participation in the ministry of reconciliation. Like faith, it is both initiated in the redemptive encounter and strengthened or increased through usage. He who would have more concern for the lost should spend more time introducing such people to God through the gospel.

The prime mover for gospel outreach is not how much we love man, anyway. It is how much we love God! Get a person right with God! . . . right enough to obey the Lord's command instead of waiting for the moving of the water. Get him to go and tell, and Christ's compassion will flow through that one like rivers of living water.

Search For Truth

By Larry T. Swaim

Sin Destroys

The common denominator of all people is sin. 1 John 1:8 states, "If we say we have no sin we deceive ourselves and the truth is not in us . . ." Yes, the Bible declares, "all have sinned and fallen short of the glory of God. There is none righteous, no not one." Turn on your radio and hear of the crime and violence rampant in our world. Open your morning newspaper and you can see sin sprawled in broad, glaring headlines.

Critics of the Bible can argue against the existence of God, Heaven, and Hell and it may take a while to prove them wrong, but there is one thing a person cannot argue with, that is sin. It is too much with us. It is the common disease of every man. All the misery, sorrow, anguish, heartache, all the murders, wars, pain, and despair that fill the world are a result directly or indirectly of sin.

Sin promises us happiness, joy and gaiety, but brings us sadness, despair, and, eventually, spiritual death. Sin destroys our relationship with each other and with God. We lie to each other, steal from each other, we say cruel, unkind things to each other, we sin against each other, thus, the destruction of every good relationship is a result of sin. Behind the beautiful mask of sin there lurks an ugly monster.

To the extent we eliminate sin from our lives, to that extent we personally become happier and better. To that extent, we make the world we live in a better place.

Senate Rejects Hearnese' Reorganization Proposals

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri Senate slapped down all four of Gov. Warren E. Hearnes' governmental reorganization proposals Wednesday.

One, to shift the surplus property unit from the Department of Education to the state purchasing agent, was first approved then the Senate backed up and voted to reject it on a 20-11 vote. The first time the opponents of the plan fell two votes short.

The other three proposals rejected would have the State Liquor Control Division and Public Service Commission under the merit system and would have set up an environmental protection board to take over air and water pollution control plus solid waste disposal.

Opponents of the plan charged the Legislature had abdicated its responsibility in passing the original law giving the governor power to reorganize executive agencies.

Under that law, a reorganization plan becomes effective 90 days after the Legislature adjourns if neither house rejects it.

Sen. J. F. Patterson, D-Caruthersville, president pro tem, said "we gave our legislative prerogatives away in passing that law." He urged the Senate to kill all four proposals "so the governor can't become the dictator of this state."

In nearly three hours of sometimes heated debate, a rule was invoked to require all senators in Jefferson City to be present, with the exception of Sen. Nelson B. Tinnin, D-Hornersville, who is in the hospital.

Then the doorkeepers locked the doors.

The debate made it clear that a majority of the Senate opposed the idea of letting the governor shift agencies around. Opponents said if the governor could put an agency under the merit system, he also would have the power to take an agency out of the merit system and put it on a patronage basis.

Most of the debate centered on the shifting of the surplus property unit to the purchasing agent. On the first vote it appeared this proposal had cleared the Senate hurdle.

By a 16-13 vote, two short of the 18 votes required, the Senate rejected a resolution that would have blocked the plan. It would have gone into 90 days after the Legislature if neither the House nor the Senate had disapproved it.

The proposal sought to shift the surplus property unit from the State Department of Education to the state purchasing agent and put the 22 employees involved under the merit system.

Sen. William J. Cason, D-Clinton, said rejection of the plan would jeopardize some $4 million worth of surplus federal property distributed to schools and local governmental units each year.

He reported that since 1946 Missouri has received about $145 million worth of surplus property — Typewriters, bulldozers, cranes, trucks and so on.

Last year the total worth was $3,774,000.

Cason said the federal government has refused to approve the Department of Education as the state disbursing unit.

But opponents of the Governor's plan, including Sen. Earl R. Blackwell, D-Hillsboro, argued that the Department of Education's personnel plan is superior to the merit system.

Newsman's Privilege Act Introduced

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. James B. Pearson, R-Kan., introduced a Newsman's Privilege Act Tuesday, designed to protect newsmen from being forced by the federal government to reveal the identity of news sources or to disclose confidential information.

"I am convinced that newsmen have a constitutional right to keep confidential their sources of information," Pearson told the Senate.

The bill would provide that the privilege of silence would not operate "when there is substantial evidence that disclosure of information held confidential by the newsmen is required to prevent a threat to human life, of espionage, or of foreign aggression."

In most other respects, however, it would protect newsmen from disclosing sources of information to a federal court, grand jury, agency or congressional committee.

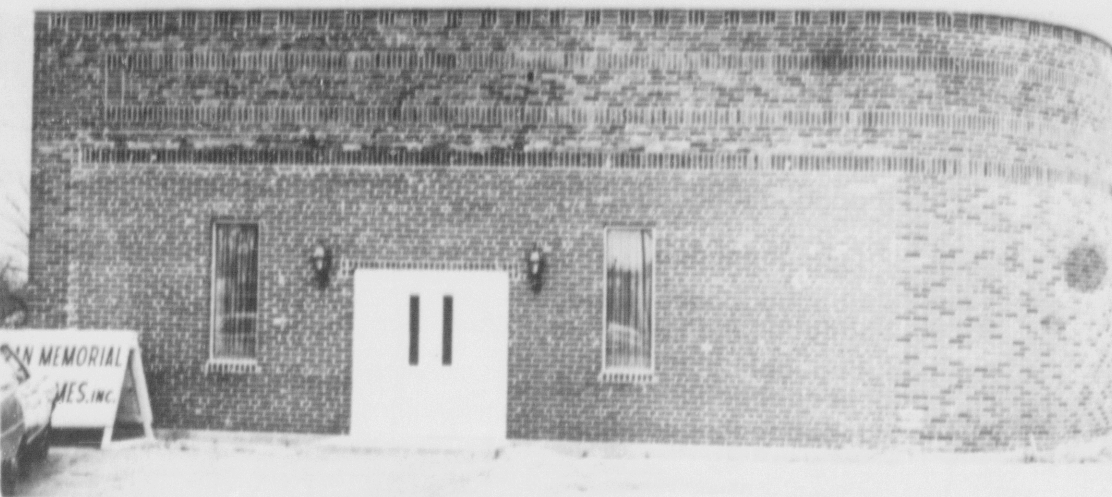

The Supreme Court has several times refused to hear cases involving newsmen who have unsuccessfully asserted their privilege to protect sources and information," Pearson said.

All equipment has arrived. The exterior of the building will be remodeled.

The public is invited to attend the open house Thursday.

Five Steps to Reduce Heart Attack Risk

COLUMBIA — What better way to greet spring — the season of renewal — than to start taking better care of your heart so that it might see you through many more healthy seasons, says the Missouri Heart Association.

With better health as a goal, the Missouri Heart Association urges all residents of Missouri to begin now to reduce their risk of heart attack, the nation's over-riding health problem. It recommends these steps for adults and youngsters alike, for the earlier preventive measures are begun, the better chance to escape premature heart problems.

FOR THE FIRST TIME IN 30 YEARS IT MAKES SENSE TO PLANT MORE COTTON.

By Gerald Dearing

Not since World War II has the position of cotton looked so promising. Here are three solid factors that cotton farmers should consider carefully before declaring their planting intentions.

1. Several successive poor crop years have reduced cotton stocks. There is now some question of whether we will have enough cotton to supply the demands in the coming years. Cotton carryover next summer may decline to 4½ million bales, near the minimum level necessary for sustained mill production. Cotton exports are expected to increase this year by as much as ¾ million bales due to dwindling world stocks, record foreign consumption prospects and the smallest free-world production in four years.

2. There is solid evidence that cotton is regaining some of the favor we've been losing to man-made fabrics in the last few decades. Furniture manufacturers report that cotton denim and corduroy are increasingly popular furniture upholstery materials. But they also report difficulty in obtaining them. If we cannot supply mill demands they will look elsewhere once and for all.

3. For the first time in 30 years we have a cotton program geared to production; not curtailment. You will have the opportunity to grow cotton for the market, while the major portion of your income is protected by production payments. Marketing quotas have been abolished, and there is no penalty for planting excess cotton. And since projected yield is based on actual production, it may be necessary to plant extra acres to protect future projected yield.

The point is that now it makes sense to plant more cotton. And the future of cotton may depend on the industry's ability to produce this year. Any other markets that cotton loses due to shortages may never be regained.

THREE FACES OF ENOCH POWELL, the man who to many Britons is the man of the coming hour and to others a threat to civil peace and democracy. Since his outspoken views led to expulsion from the Conservative party leadership, he has become a symbol of opposition to nonwhite immigration in Britain. The country's recent racial and labor difficulties have brought additional attention to the former professor of classical Greek turned impassioned politician — "demagogue," according to some quarters. Boomed by supporters as a future prime minister, he has strong opinions on other issues, including opposition to British membership in the Common Market.

LATEST FASHION in space suits is tried out by astronaut Alfred M. Worden Jr., Command Module pilot for the Apollo 15 lunar mission, set for a July 26 launch. The new model features greater durability, easier donning and removing, improved comfort and visibility and increased neck, shoulder, hand, waist and leg mobility. For actual use in space, suit will be covered with a fireproof-cloth outer skin.

One of many hybrid varieties of tomatoes, Better Boy is new for this year. Its superior characteristics are resistance to several common tomato diseases and to nematodes (eel worms).

Growing hybrid varieties of vegetables will save you cash for you'll produce sturdier plants, more disease-resistant in many cases and obtain greater yield (so you can use less space) as well as larger leaves, fruits or roots.

If you're unfamiliar with hybrids, it's time you knew about them. They're the progeny of 2 different varieties, each selected as a parent for 1 or more outstanding characteristics that, combined, will mean a better plant for you, the gardener.

After plants of both parents have been grown, pollinated with their own pollen generation after generation to accentuate those important characters, and resulting seed has been harvested and replanted all those years, the result is an "inbred" line of plants — scrawny and unattractive, but bearing the characters for which they were selected.

When inbred plants are crossed, that is the pollen from the flowers of 1 parent has been brushed by hand on the pistils of blossoms of the other, plants grown from the resulting seeds will display "hybrid vigor."

That's what you get in the hybrid seeds you buy for only a few cents more per packet than those of ordinary varieties. You also get the desirable characteristics for which the plant breeder has gone through the long, expensive process outlined above.

There are hybrids of both flowers and vegetables. Most corn varieties available are hybrids; those mammoth petunias and marigolds are hybrids.

Look in the catalogs or on the seed packets for the designation F₁. This is shorthand for "first filial," a first generation hybrid from those inbred parent plants. Those varieties are your "best buy."

West German hospitals treated 9,148,700 persons in 1969 out of a total population of 60 million, the Federal Statistics Office reports.

It's The Law

Rufus All Wet In Dog Case

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Rufus was making his rounds through a factory as a night watchman when he heard the frantic barking of his pet dog Harry. It seemed that Harry, had fallen into a river that flowed past the factory. Flipping off his shoes and flinging his jacket to the wind, Rufus dove into the icy waters to effect a rescue.

As it developed, however, Harry proved to the better of the two swimmers. While the paddling canine managed to reach shore unassisted, waterlogged Rufus had to be hauled out of the drink just as he was going down for the traditional third time.

Soggy and unable to wrok for a long time thereafter, Rufus applied for a Workman's Compensation award.

"Sorry," he was told, "but your being laid up is not the result of your employment. Diving into a river to rescue a dog was not part of your job."

"You're wrong" was FRufus's answer. "A night watchman without a dog is like bacon without eggs. He helps make the rounds, and in truth, is a sniffing co-worker. Consequently, in attempting to rescue Harry, I was performing a duty owed to any fellow employee."

Denied the award, Rufus doggedly took the matter to court. IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you grant a Workman's Compensation award to the dogged night watchman?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that a dog is not considered a fellow worker to a night watchman; that, therefore, Rufus has no duty to dive into the river to rescue Harry, particularly when he should have realized that Harry was in no danger of drowning.

Based upon a 1929 Georgia Supreme Court Decision.

part of the film made the day before. When the lights came up, he continued to slump deep in his own thoughts. The director, drive to become an actor. "It's Buzz Kulik, came over to him the production side that and asked, "Darren just one day interests me and I'm sure I'm waiting for you to make getting a chance to learn a great some comment, show some emotion after you've seen the work."

"I'm just thinking," said Darren who finds herself in a great deal of trouble. He's lanky, lean, soft-spoken and wears When we walked back to the studio where 16-year-old Darren would go back to work on his first motionpicture, he was still thoughtful. "I was thinking about that argument scene," he told us, "I thought how I could have played it much stronger, much better."

It is unusual for directors to let their actors see the rushes (yesterday's filming) but Darren, who won a coveted part in "To Find A Man," feels it helps him. "It shows me what I'm doing wrong, mannerisms I may have and maybe how I can do better in the next scene we shoot."

For Darren this is a different side of the footlights from that he's used to. "I work with an amateur theatre group up in Westchester but most of my work is in the production part of it, and that's what interests me most."

"That's what impresses me about this film," He told us, "everything here is so expensive. The money they spend to build the sets, the props, the lights, today," Darren told us.

For the film, Darren is made even one year younger - fifteen, and plays the part of a bright, scientific kid from the plush East Side of New York. The day we visited the set, Darren had little action but spent most of his time throwing lines at Pamela who was on-camera. As unexcited as Darren may be about himself and the role in which he now finds himself, the screen reveals him as a highly competent actor even though he has never faced a camera before.

Even with his calm manner, one senses that when he says, "I'll learn how to do it better the next time," he's getting more and more involved before the camera. And, who knows if the boy from New Rochelle with the actress-mother won't change his area of interest from painting sets to being on them permanently?

Cholesterol-Used But Not Understood

COLUMBIA — Many Americans are aware that if they eat foods low in cholesterol they may retard the process of hardening of the arteries and reduce their risk of heart attack and stroke. But few know what cholesterol is and what it does. Cholesterol is not all bad. In proper amounts, it is in fact involved in a number of functions vital to body health, says the Missouri Heart Association.

A fat-like chemical substance, cholesterol is found in every living animal cell, reading its highest concentration in the cells of the central nervous system. Not all of its roles are clear, but this chemical is known to be essential to the proper architecture of the cell membrane. As such it presumably plays a key role in regulating what gets in and out of the cell. It is also the forerunner of a number of other agents including the sex and adrenal hormones.

What makes cholesterol such a potential biological bugaboo, says the Missouri Heart Association, is that an excess amount of it in the blood may increase susceptibility to heart attack. There's a lot of evidence that when there is an excess of cholesterol it piles up in the coronary arteries (along with other fatty substances) and can reduce or shut off blood flow to the heart muscle. Result: Heart Attack.

Cholesterol is present in varying amounts in foods of animal origin (eggs, meat, poultry and dairy products) and in sea food. Egg yolks, fish roe, shellfish (lobster, shrimp, crabs, clams and oysters) and organ meats (brains, sweetbreads, kidney and liver) are particularly rich in cholesterol.

The body also makes cholesterol and the amount made apparently depends on the kids of fat we eat. Animal or saturated fats tend to increase cholesterol levels in the blood. Presumably they spur the liver to manufacture more of it. Polyunsaturated fats (such as those found in corn oil, cottonseed oil, soybean oil and sunflower oil) tend to decrease cholesterol levels.

Knowing that cholesterol — fatty in feel and pearly in color — is neither all good or all bad, but somewhere in between, should encourage Americans to modify their diets so that intake of cholesterol is kept within due bounds, the Missouri Heart Association concludes.
